Thrice Happy Chows
Congress Is Dead
Threatening Ladies
The Three-Car Family

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

FROM his high tower Teufelsdroeckh saw interesting things—the widow waiting for a livelihood, gamblers over their rouge et noir, peasants from the country, condemned cells, where murderers sat listening to hammering on the gallows.

It is less romantic looking down from New York's Ritz tower over buildings where a few live with millions, and farther east and west, where millions live on little.

But one roof top early yesterday morning might have interested the Angel Gabriel, who writes what we do.

THE roof was divided by neat green fences into playgrounds, and there you could see at play, rolling and tumbling over each other in the bright sunlight, happy chow dogs, breathing good air far above automobile fumes and dangers, enjoying the sun's health-giving actinic rays.

Two the east and west children were playing in the gutters, dodging trucks, breathing in gas from exhaust pipes. No playgrounds for them on roofs. Their fathers pay low rents. It would not pay to fuss over them.

Writing more about that you could drift into "bolshevism."

It is some comfort to know that the King's horse, recent winner of his majesty's first "classic" race in several years, was treated all Winter with artificial actinic rays. Also, in London, actinic ray treatment is given to valuable apes that do not like the British climate.

In the way of real news to interest a practical nation, nothing much worth while.

The usual music and flowers for Decoration Day, with very old survivors of the Civil War proud to parade, and younger men proud of their golf scores.

No news from the brave Italian Nobile. But hope is not abandoned. The Russian government will join the search for him, so that the two extremes of theory in government, Sovetism and Mussolinism, both alike in autocratic absolutism, are united in good work.

CONGRESS is dead for the present. The House adjourned cheering Longworth, the Senate acclaimed Dawes—both, especially Dawes, material for the Republican nomination "if anything should happen to Mr. Hoover's friends' plans."

Some ladies, united in politics, raise a warning finger, saying to the G. O. P. pachyderm: "If you don't nominate Hoover, we shall leave our party and vote for Smith."

They remind you of the bitter little boy who said he was going into the garden "to eat worms."

Big business news is the Chrysler-Dodge automobile merger. One or two more combinations and four or five concerns would make all the cars. A thoughtful publisher says: "That would be bad for advertising." But it might not be.

TODAY's task is to make a "two-car family" of the "one-car family," and of the "two-car family" a "three-car family."

That can and should be done, but it calls for advertising, which is auto-suggestion in the mass.

Twenty-four million automobiles are running in America. At least 10,000,000 more are needed. That calls for intelligent advertising.

On the tomb of grand old Baron von Stein is written: "The last of his knightly race, which had ruled on the Lahn for 700 years; humble before God, high-hearted before men, an enemy of untruth and of injustice."

You should read the chapters on his life in Andrew D. White's Seven Great Statesmen."

PROGRAM FOR STATE MEETING IS COMPLETED

Ohio Fire Chiefs' Association To Open Annual Session in Marion, Tuesday

HERE FOR THREE DAYS

Addresses, Fireworks and Exhibits Planned; Over 200 Chiefs Expected

With the program completed, reception committees appointed, convention hall secured and numerous other details cared for, the stage is set for what members of the Fire Chiefs' Association of Ohio predict will be the largest meeting of the organization ever held, when chiefs from all parts of the state gather here next week for their eleventh annual convention.

The convention will open Tuesday, June 5, and will continue for three days, closing Thursday morning with the annual election of officers and reports of committees.

Of greatest interest to the public in general will be the program to be held at Crystal Lake park on Wednesday afternoon and night, when spectacular demonstrations of fire apparatus, fire department appliances and the manner of handling the various devices, particularly with a limited water supply, will be given. The afternoon program will close with a basket picnic at 6 o'clock while the night events will be featured with the huge fireworks display to be given on the lake. The Wednesday afternoon and evening program will be open to the public.

Guests of Park Company

The chiefs and their families will be the guests of the park management Wednesday afternoon and night, Manager Fred B. Scherff said today, and will be provided with free access to all amusements and to the dance hall in the evening. It is also announced that merchants will close their stores on Wednesday afternoon.

Between 200 and 250 fire chiefs from all parts of the state are expected to attend the convention which will open Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock with registration at the Central Fire Station. The large room on the second

COOLIDGE TO SPEND VACATION IN WEST

Summer White House To Be Established Near Superior, Wis.

Washington, May 31 — President Coolidge is going west again for his summer vacation.

The summer White House will be established this year on the Henry Clay Pierre estate, 35 miles from Superior, Wis., it was announced today. The estate, known as "Cedar Island Lodge," is on the Brule River. Executive offices will be maintained in Superior.

President Coolidge expects to leave Washington shortly after June 11, when he addresses the business organization of the government.

Last year the president spent his vacation in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

JUDGES OF SUPREME COURT VISIT MARION

Three Members of State Tribunal Attend Bar Association Meeting

The Marion County Bar Association was host to three judges of the Supreme Court of Ohio and a number of prominent visiting attorneys at a meeting held here Tuesday night.

The chief address of the evening was given by Judge Thomas Darby, Cincinnati, of the Common Pleas Court of Hamilton County. Judge Darby is a member of a committee of Ohio attorneys fostering a move to recodify the criminal laws of the state. His talk dealt with this work.

The Supreme Court was represented by Chief Justice Marshall, Justice Robert Day and Justice Florence E. Allen, each of whom spoke briefly.

Among others on the program was Attorney Frank E. Hoyt, [illegible]

In School Honor List

EIGHTEEN students, 13 seniors and five juniors, pictured above, comprise the latest addition to Harding High School's chapter of National Honor Society, membership in which is the highest distinction to be attained by a student of the local schools.

Induction services for the new members were conducted recently by the 19 students enrolled in the society earlier in the year.

The five juniors, who will form the nucleus of next year's society, are Mary J. Stafford, Jane Guthery, John Waddell, Arthur Cheney and Frederick Merchant.

Included in the group are Robert Elliott, who edited the Quiver Junior, school paper, this year; John Waddell, who will edit the paper next year, and Miss Guthery, who will serve next year as editor of the Harding High School yearbook, Quiver Annual. Clyde Wendell, who is 25 years old, is a licensed preacher at Oakland Evangelical Church.

Members of the society, chosen scholastically from the upper third of their class, are students who have distinguished themselves in school activities. Membership is based on scholarship, leadership, character and service.

WAR HERO DIES

Orphan First To Raise Flag Over Havana in Spanish War

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., May 31 —The first American soldier to raise the Stars and Stripes over the city of Havana, Cuba, during the Spanish-American War was dead at his home here today.

The Spanish-American War veteran is Albert L. Bumgarner, 56, who died at his home here yesterday. Death was due to an attack of flu, doctors reported.

In the Spanish-American War, Bumgarner was secretary to General T. H. Bliss.

$8,800 LIQUOR STOCK SEIZED IN RAID HERE

Largest Haul in History of County Made at Garage on S. State-st

One of the largest hauls in the history of Marion County liquor law enforcement was made early Tuesday night when Sheriff James A. Deal confiscated a cache of more than 550 gallons of sugar whisky. Fred Leack, said to be from Marion, was arrested by the sheriff on an illegal possession charge.

The liquor was found in a garage on S. State-st, just south of the postoffice. According to Sheriff Deal the garage belongs to Adam Bauer, local photographer. The garage had been rented by Leack who instead of using it as a storage place for his machine, made it headquarters for his liquor running trade. The sheriff said the garage had been rented only two days before the arrest was made.

Gets Phone Call

About dark Tuesday night, Sheriff Deal said today, he received a telephone call from an unknown person, telling him to go immediately to the garage where the liquor was found. On arriving there he found Leack in the act of loading his automobile with a supply of liquor for delivery, Deal states.

The entire lot of liquor was put up in tin cans of one and five gallon sizes. About 375 gallons were in the large cans. A number of empty one gallon cans were also taken in the raid.

It is thought that the liquor was brought to Marion in a truck Monday night and unloaded in the garage. Leack would not reveal the source of supply.

The liquor, figured at current retail prices of $2 a pint in Marion, is valued at $8,800.

Leack was to be arraigned in Municipal Court before Judge William H. Martin today.

FOUR NATIONS JOIN - SEARCH FOR NOBILE

Prepare To Scour Arctic Regions in Hunt for Explorer and Companions

Four nations are now joined in the search for Gen. Umberto Nobile, Italian polar explorer, and his 17 companions, but the hunt is still in its preliminary stages, owing to violent gales of snow and wind over the arctic. Sweden has united with Norway, Soviet Russia and Italy in the quest for the ill-fated expedition. Capt. Theorborg, of the Swedish air force, was due at Oslo today to coordinate how many Swedish naval seaplanes should be used.

GOFF AND SMITH ARE LEADERS IN PRIMARY

Hoover Running Behind Favorite Son Candidate in West Virginia

Charleston, W. Va, May 31—Senator Guy D. Goff, favorite son candidate, and Gov. Al Smith of New York apparently have won the Republican and Democratic preference vote in the West Virginia primary with three-fourths of the results tabulated.

Out of 1,900 of the 2,306 precincts, Goff was today leading Secretary of Commerce Hoover by approximately 7,000 votes for the 16 delegates to the Republican convention at Kansas City.

Smith's lead over Senator James A. Reed of Missouri was approximately 9,500 in the same contest for the 16 Democratic delegates.

GIANT PLANE BEGINS FLIGHT ACROSS PACIFIC

Four Fliers Seek To Link America and Australia by Air

OFF FOR HONOLULU

First Goal of Voyage; Ideal Weather Prevails for Take-Off

Municipal Airport, Oakland, Cal., May 31—On the first lap of an attempt to link the continents of North America and Australia by air, the giant silver-winged monoplane Southern Cross, with four men aboard, hopped off today for Honolulu.

Under perfect weather conditions, the takeoff was made at 8:49 a. m.

The giant Fokker carried its crew of four intrepid airmen and a load of 1,200 gallons of gasoline down the historic runway here and lifted its seven tons of weight from the ground to follow the Pacific Air trail blazed by Lieutenants Lester Maitland and Albert Hegenberger.

The flight to Australia, if successful, will be the longest trans-oceanic flight in history.

The powerful plane was piloted on the take-off by Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian war ace, and carried Charles T. P. Ulm, flight manager and relief pilot, Captain Harry Lyons, navigator, and James W. Warner, radio man.

They will be guided over the pacific from Oakland to Hawaii by the army's radio beacon at Crissy Field, which led the army fliers in their historic flight and Arthur Goebel in the Dole race.

From Honolulu the Stars will sweep a flight of 3,126 miles to Suva, Fiji Islands, the longest hop ever a single expanse of water ever attempted in the history of aviation.

From Suva it is planned to fly to Brisbane, thence to Sydney.

BANDITS GET RICH HAUL IN CLUB RAID

Get Over $150,000 in Cash and Jewels in Hold-Up of Guests

Indianapolis, May 31—Ten masked bandits early today held up the Broadmoor Country Club and robbed 200 guests of jewelry and currency valued at between $150,000 and $200,000.

The victims were prominent citizens of Indianapolis and their out-of-town guests, here to attend the auto race. The holiday festivities at the exclusive club were in full swing when the bandits trooped in like a squad of well-trained soldiers.

They were equipped with submachine guns, sawed off shotguns and revolvers.

The guests were ordered to line up against the wall. When a few of the men objected, a volley of shots roared over their heads and they quickly fell in line.

THE MARION

One last embrace . . and then the pirates tore her away . . . .

CLASPED in each other's arms, the hearts of the Boy and Girl beat strong with warm young love, as the gorgeous tropic moon rode high above the still Mediterranean. But danger was close at hand. Behind that creeping mist on the horizon, were the swift vessels of the Tripolitan pirates, lying in wait for American ships. American wealth, American women. Nearer and nearer crept the pirate vessels till in one last rush, the sea-bandits swarmed up over the side. One last embrace—and then the young lovers were torn apart by a hurricane of thrilling events in a sensational struggle for life and love.

First, the capture by the pirates. The horrors of the Tripolitan Slave Markets. The dank, steaming dungeons. The Boy's amazing escape from the pirate fort. The unsuccessful attempt to rescue the Girl. Then the flight to sea in a skiff. The discovery of the American fleet. The desperate venture into the harbor of Tripoli. The destruction of the pirate ships under the guns of their own fort. The final sensational sea-battle with the Tripolitans. The rescue of the Girl.

See handsome young Charles Farrell as the Boy, lovely Esther Ralston as the Girl, Wallace Beery as two-fisted humorous sailor, George Bancroft, as Beery's side-kick, a jolly gunner whose only love was Lowell Lucy, his pet cannon.

Annual Concert of Grade Schools Delights Audience at Chautauqua Pavilion

500 Pupils Present Program of Orchestra and Vocal Numbers; Cantata, "Rip Van Winkle," Is Pleasing Feature of Entertainment

One of the finest exhibitions of music, talent and co-operative effort ever presented by grade school children here, was the second annual concert of the chorus and orchestra of Marion Public Schools given Tuesday night at Chautauqua Pavilion, Garfield Park. The performance was directed by Howard M. Temple, whose work as supervisor of music in the city schools has been an outstanding success.

The pavilion was almost filled to capacity for the presentation.

Approximately 500 children took part, making a pleasing picture assembled on the platform in regulation outfits of white with black ties. Flowers and flags were used in the decorations.

Opening Numbers

The program opened with five delightful orchestra numbers presented with a harmony and musical sense amazing in students of the age of those who participated. The vocal presentation was a cantata, "Rip Van Winkle", the story of Irving's famous character being beautifully told in descriptive vocal selections. In part one was presented the village in the mountains, Rip Van Winkle and his dog Wolf, Rip and the Phantom Mountain Man, the magic flagon, and, in part two Rip Van Winkle's awakening, his return, his search for his friends, and, in closing, the legend of the mountains.

100 in Orchestra.

The orchestra, numbering about 100 pieces, and 13 different types of instruments, included in the forepart of the program the following numbers: "March—America Forever", Ascher; overture, "Diana", Ascher; "The Jolly Blacksmith", a descriptive humorous polka by Bowman; march, "Our Aviator", with playing dedicated to Lindbergh, and, in closing, "Old Glory Selection" is a Toreben arrangement by Moredy. Perhaps the number most well-received in the group was "The Jolly Blacksmith," in which was portrayed daybreak, morning in a village church, song of the blacksmiths, and the close of day.

Piano accompaniments were played by two music instructors in the local schools, Misses Marion V. McNeil and Dorothy Briggs.

Two Sides of the Fence

There are two sides of the fence today. A city, in its bid for industry and progress, must be on one of the two sides. There is no such thing as staying a-top the fence. On one side are out-grown ideas of values, and stagnation. On the other, clear-minded realization of what industry demands, 1928 ideas of worth and values, and steady constant growth.

It is for Marion to choose her side of the industrial fence.

Recognition of the facts that an adequate supply of gas is necessary to industry, and that Gas is Worth More, is the weight that will bring Marion to firm footing on the right side of the fence—the side whose growth is certain and industry flourishes.

When you do this much for Marion, Marion will repay you with better living and working conditions.

Series of Probes to Take up Time of Legislators During Summer Months

Inquiries into Wide Range of Subjects Planned for Committees from Congress; Presidential Fund Investigators Coming to Ohio Tonight

Washington, May 31—An all-summer series of congressional investigations was in prospect today despite the adjournment of congress.

Presidential campaign expenditures, government oil leases in the Salt Creek fields, the S-4 submarine disaster, senatorial election contests, cotton market conditions, military and naval affairs and activities of Herbert Hoover as food administrator during the war were among the subjects to be investigated this summer by congressional committees. The proposed inquiries will be used primarily to gather information for the introduction of legislation at next winter's session.

The senate presidential funds committee will be the busiest for the next few weeks. It has been divided into two sub-committees, one of which will go to Ohio, West Virginia and probably Indiana, and the other to New York. The Ohio group will consist of Senators McMaster, Republican of South Dakota, and Barkley, Democrat of Kentucky. They will leave tonight for Cincinnati. The other sub-committee, composed of Senators Steiwer, Republican of Oregon, and Bratton, Democrat of New Mexico, will investigate campaign expenditures in New York Friday. An inquiry into the Iowa primary was under consideration, while a sub-committe may visit California in July.

Ready To Convene

The house's presidential campaign fund committee meanwhile will be sitting in reserve, waiting to launch an investigation if conditions require it. Incidentally, if the committee does operate, it will be the first time the house has undertaken an investigation into national politics. Heretofore, it has left such work to the senate.

The senate Teapot Dome committee already has started an inquiry into the leasing of the government's Salt Creek fields in Wyoming, said to be the richest oil deposit in the world. This inquiry will be continued throughout the summer, with the committee hoping to file a report next December.

Two senatorial election contests will be carried on during the summer. The senate elections committee will continue its inquiry into the fraud charges brought against Senator-elect William S. Vare, Republican of Pennsylvania, by William B. Wilson, his defeated Democratic opponent in the 1926 election. Hearings will be held in Philadelphia, July 9. The Reed slush fund committee meanwhile will investigate slush fund charges raised in the recent New Jersey senatorial primary, a sub-committee probably going to that state within the next 10 days.

Submarine Inquiry

The senate inquiry into the S-4 disaster will be turned into an investigation of safety devices for submarines. Two plans for rescuing the imprisoned crews of disabled submarines will be inspected by the senate naval affairs committee during the recess. One plan involves a huge helmet which members of the crew would don and then, being released from the submarine, would attempt to reach the surface.

The other involves a giant "elevator," which would be dropped from the surface, fastened to the hull of the submarine and brought up again, after members of the crew had entered it.

The senate agriculture committee will continue its probe meanwhile into cotton price conditions and especially the cause of the market deflation period of 1927. A sub-committee has planned a visit to cotton exchanges during the summer, in the hope of preparing remedial legislation for submission to the next congress.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

H. B. Caldwell, M.D. AT AGE 63

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—cold, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home,—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

Mrs. Christina Creasap Dies at Home Here; Funeral is Friday Afternoon

Mrs. Christina Creasap, 87, widow of Russell Creasap, died of infirmities of age at 1:50 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at her home, 194 Benton-pl. She had been in ill health for two months.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at her late and burial will be in Salem Cemetery.

Mrs. Creasap was born in Pleasant Township March 10, 1841. She was the daughter of Jacob and Elisabeth Warner Smith, who were natives of Baden, Germany. Mr. Creasap, to whom she was married in 1860 in Richland Township, preceded her in death 18 years ago. She was a member of Salem Evangelical Church in Claridon Township.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Smithson, with whom she made her home, a grandson, C. I. Smithson, 195 Curtis-av, two great-grandchildren, Mrs. Henry Goyer and Mrs. Paul Lust, and one great-great-grandson, Charles Lust.

COURT FIXES BOND OF THEATER OWNER

Action Taken by Appellate Judges in Contempt Case

Bond for Tim Roberts, Mansfield theater manager who was fined $25 for contempt of court by Judge Scofield in Common Pleas Court, Monday, was fixed at $200 by the Court of Appeals, which is in session here today.

An appeal on error has been filed with the Court of Appeals. No date for hearing the appeal has been set.

Roberts, who was a defense witness in the Edward F. Sharpless Sunday motion picture trial, was fined for testimony given on the witness stand in which he admitted that he knew he was violating the law in operating a show on Sunday. He is being represented in the appeal by Attorneys Grant E. Mouser and J. Malcolm Stellitz.

COURT OF APPEALS HOLDS SESSION HERE

Four Cases on Docket for Hearing; Two Argued This Morning

The Court of Appeals of this district was in session here today. When the court recessed at noon two of the four cases to be heard had been disposed of. The third was continued until this afternoon.

Phil M. Crow, of Kenton, presiding judge, Kent W. Hughes, Lima, and Charles L. Justice, of Marion, were on the bench.

The appeal of the defendants in the foreclosure suit of S. W. Fields against J. V. Lotz and others was dismissed by agreement. John H. Clark represented the plaintiff. The defendants were represented by Mouser, Young & Mouser, W. P. Moloney, and Louis E. Myers.

The appeal of the Pennsylvania railroad in the suit against Marion County, involving a ditch along the right of way of the road, was also dismissed by agreement. J. H. Eymon represented the Pennsylvania. Frank Wiedemann, prosecuting attorney, represented the county.

The injunction suit of Frank Ulsh to prevent the Buckeye Supply Co. from removing equipment from the oil wells on the farm of the plaintiff was to be continued this afternoon.

The appeal of this case is another step in the long court procedure through which the Caledonia oil field has gone in recent years.

Ulsh appealed the decision of the Common Pleas Court which gave the defendant the right to remove its equipment from the field.

John Edward Taylor, of Green Street Green, said to be the oldest man in Kent, England, celebrated his one-hundred-fourth birthday recently by working in his garden.

Fast Games Expected In Industrial, Commercial Loops

EAGLES AND KAPPAS MEET AT SILK MILL FOR INITIAL POSITION

Lead of Hocking Valley Nine Is Threatened by C., D. & M. Team

BY KARL S. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

Leadership in both the Industrial and Commercial Leagues is expected to be badly shaken by Saturday as a result of games scheduled tonight and Friday in which strong teams meet speedy aggregations.

The lead of the Hocking Valley team in the Industrial League is seriously threatened by the C., D. & M. and anything may happen. In the other loop the tie for first place will be no more after the Eagles and Kappas get through slashing each other's throats.

The second place C., D. & M. team last week pulled a big surprise in defeating the Shovel Club and sending the latter team down to second place. Unless the pitching of Gruber can keep the game out of the fire, the Hocking Valley team is just as likely to lose as not. Of course last week's spurt of the electrics may have been a lucky break. These two teams will play at Fairfield tonight.

Osgood Plays Shovel

Osgood and the Shovel Club will meet at Shovel in a contest that will eliminate the crowded condition around second place of the standings. Other contests scheduled in the league are: Excavator vs. Huber at Lincoln; Fairfield vs. Erie Roundhouse at Central.

The flight of the Eagles nine towards their second championship of the Commercial recreation loop is not expected to be halted by the confident Kappa team at Silk Mills in Friday night's headliner.

Defeat Shovel

Last week the lodgemen cut the props from under the Shovel A. A. team to eliminate one of their strongest opponents. The Kappas are expected to be just another resting place before taking on some of the other weaker teams of the league.

The Shovel Club is expected to have but little trouble in walking over the lifeless bodies of the Star team in their contest at Fairfield. The diggers are in second place with only one defeat while the printers have been allowed to go no farther than third place, a tie at that, with only one contest won.

Erie Clerks are expected to stay near the top by defeating the last place Baptists in a contest at Central. The Baptists have failed to chalk up a single win in three attempts to date. The second place K. of P. team will meet Imly of Lincoln in a fray that should turn out good for the fraternal men. Provided the Kiwanis can get a team together, the Erie Tardmen will play on the Shovel diamond. To date the Kiwanis team has played just one game.

LEGAL NOTICE

Roscoe T. Van Dine, whose place of residence is unknown, will take notice that on the 7th day of May, 1928, Violet Mae Van Dine filed in the Court of Common Pleas of Marion County, Ohio, her petition against him, praying that she may be divorced from him on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and of extreme cruelty to her. EVEN HIS CIGAR KNOWS HOW TO POSE

THE OVERLORD of Fistiana, George L. (Tex) Rickard, purveyor of "battles of the century" and what-not, and the only impresario of the waiting who ever has been able to reap two-million-dollar harvests in the vineyard of fisticuffs, does his stuff before the camera. The cigar, in a part of the picture, but Tex's most potent aide is his fountain pen. Such notables as Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey and Tom Heeney can easily testify to the power of that there little pen of Tex's.

REDS WIN TWO GAMES

NO EVEN BREAKS IN TWIN BILL CONTESTS

Cleveland Indians Drop Close Ones to Detroit Tigers

New York, May 31—The much-quoted law of averages absorbed a terrific kick in the pants when not a single one of the eight double headers scheduled for the big league teams on Memorial Day resulted in an even break. The Reds, Cardinals, Braves, Athletics, Browns and Tigers each won two games, while the New York Giants and Washington Senators made hay while the sun shone for one game only.

Seventy thousand fans mourned as the Cubs lost twice to Cincinnati, 6 to 0 and 2 to 1, and dropped to fourth place. Rixey and Kowp outpitched Root and Malone.

The Cardinals nicked the Pirates twice, 4 to 3 and 10 to 1, stretching Pittsburgh's losing streak to six games. The Cards haven't been trimmed by the Bucs all season.

Giants In Second

The Giants jumped to second place, 2½ games behind Cincinnati, by slaughtering Brooklyn again, 9 to 1. Faulkner was there like a duck in the punches. Rain halted the second game in the seventh with the score tied at 2-2.

Rogers Hornsby smacked two home runs as the Boston Braves scorched the Phillies to the tune of 11 to 5 and 5 to 3. George Sisler got three hits and stole two bases. The Phils' percentage is now down to .160 and is rapidly approaching infinity.

Yanks Are Blanked

Sixty-five thousand fans, the largest New York crowd of the season, received a severe shock when the Yankees were whitewashed by Lefty Braxton of Washington, once a Yank. He held the wrecking crew of the champs to three hits. In the nightcap the Yanks scored seven runs which were erased by rain in the second inning.

WINNER SET

Will Get Match with Jimmy McLarnin Next Month

New York, May 31—The winner of the semi-final bout between Lope Tenorio, the Filipino lightweight, and King Tut, of Minneapolis, at Madison Square Garden tonight probably will be matched with Jimmy McLarnin for a bout here next month.

Louis (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion, is a 7 to 5 favorite to defeat Manuel Quintero, Tampa southpaw, in the main event. Baby Joe Gans, colored Pacific Coast battler, books up with Jackie Brady, of Syracuse, in the first 10-rounder.

YOUTHFUL WINNER OF RACE GETS $35,000

Louis Meyer, 23, Collects Rich Prize in Memorial Day Auto Event

Indianapolis, May 31—Louis Meyer, youthful Los Angeles driver, was $35,000 richer today, following his victory here yesterday in the sixteenth annual Memorial Day automobile race. For winning the 500-mile grind, Meyer received $25,000 first prize with lapp money and accessory awards yielding about $10,000 additional.

Coming from behind to win in the last 20 miles of the gruelling 500, the 23-year-old Californian drove a heady race, finishing in 5 hours, 1 minute, 33.75 seconds at an average of 99.482 miles per hour.

The recent winning streak of the Red Sox was rewarded when 36,000 fans, the biggest Fenway Park crowd in years, turned out to watch the Bostonese perform. They were sadly disillusioned when the Carrigan clan was beaten twice by the veterans of the Athletics' pitching staff, Ehmke and Quinn. The scores were 3 to 1 and 9 to 2.

The A's now trail the Yankees by only seven games, if that means anything.

Dan Howley's Browns took both ends of a twin bill from the White Sox, 3 to 1 and 5 to 2. The St. Louis Rookies, Ogden and Crowder, had the edge on Faber and Thomas. The Browns have won four straight.

Detroit regained sixth place by taking two close ones from Cleveland, 4 to 3 and 6 to 5. Fat Fothergill's sacrifice fly in the twelfth inning of the second game scored Gehringer, who had tripled.

KENTON REDS TAKE BLANCHARD ACROSS

Marion Player Plays Big Part in 8 to 4 Victory

Kenton, May 31—Showing improved form and a much stronger line-up, the Kenton Reds Wednesday copped their first game of the season beating the strong Blanchard ball club by a score of 8 to 4.

Under the direction of Chick Shelly, recently annexed as playing manager, the Reds give promise of developing into one of the strongest semi-pro diamond teams in this section of the state.

Getting away to an early start the Reds pushed across three runs in the opening frame and followed with one in the third, three more in the sixth and the eighth in the eighth inning. Blanchard was held scoreless until the third making two runs. The remaining two came in the seventh.

Weis and Howard, former McGuffey battery, performed in grand style for Kenton and received airtight support in the field. Blanchard used two hurlers, Willeke and Holmes but they were unable to halt the locals.

Young, crack Marion shortstop, showed well for Kenton handling many difficult tries with only one error being chalked against him. Out of four times at bat he poled out three hits, one of them for a double.

Norby Hathcock, colored utility player, scored the only homer of the game. His long drive, believed the longest ever recorded on the Lake Eddie wild diamonds, came in the third when no men were on base.

Willeke, Blanchard hurler, who pitched the greater part of the game for his club, got three hits out of four times at bat and scored half his team's four tallies.

St. Mary's entry in Sunday School Recreation League No. 1 is down with the rest o fthe boys today as a result of the gift package handed them Tuesday night by Wesley in the form of a 3 to 2 defeat.

The first place situation finds the Irish tied with Calvary and Christian. The former league leaders had won three straight contests before going down in defeat.

Scoring two runs in the third inning, the Saints were held scoreless for the balance of the game. Wesley tied the score in the sixth at two-all and in the seventh forged ahead on an error.

Epworth Sr. was eliminated from a first place tie as the big guns of Calvary found their mark. A score of 7 to 1 was chalked up before the Senior nine called it quits in the seventh. Calvary won the city title last year.

Presbyterian No. 1 barely escaped a whitewashing at the hands of the Central Christians by marking up their only score in the seventh inning. By scoring three runs in the final frame Christians won 5 to 1.

The outstanding contest of the fourth round was the game between Trinity and Epworth. The contest went 10 innings before being called on account of darkness with the score tied at two-all.

Richard Slated To Place Coin to Tunney's Credit

New York, May 31—Promoter Tex Rickard is scheduled to place a second check for $100,000 in escrow for Gene Tunney today.

Under the terms of his contract with the heavyweight champion Rickard obligated himself to post $100,000 last winter and a like sum on June 1. He is also supposed to name the date of the Tunney-Heeney battle but by mutual agreement this official announcement will be postponed while Tex's lawyers attempt to have the fight exempted from the new 25 per cent federal tax.

Ty Cobb Is Well Liked By Players; Always Ready To Give Aid To Youngsters

BY FRANK G. MENKE

If you mingle among baseball players in the American circuit, about the first thing you'll hear is some cheering for Ty Cobb.

The above statement, perhaps, will surprise because, through the years, certain writers, who haven't fancied the fiery Georgian, have created an impression that Cobb is disliked, not only by the athletes who are his dimmond enemies, but by his mates as well.

Yet they'll tell you within the real shrine of baseball:

"Cobb does more to help kid ball players than any dozen men in the league. He'll go a hundred miles out of his way and give his time and energy, and the full benefit of his long years of experience to help a kid improve his game.

Favorite of Simmons

Among the men who idolize Cobb is Al Simmons, his teammate with the Athletics.

"The year I broke in," relates Simmons, "I was wildly anxious to make good. As a result, I became overanxious, and that, with some of the faults I had brought along from the minors didn't make me look like anybody that Connie Mack ought to keep on the payroll.

"We played Detroit one day—that was while Cobb was with that team. When the game was over Cobb hunted me up.

"I watched your work today," he said. "You'll make good if you just study down a little and correct a couple of faults. Would you mind if I pointed them out to you?"

Cobb Very Tactful

"The way he asked me that you'd think I was actually doing him a favor letting him tell me how to play baseball. There he was the greatest player in the game—and there I was a rookie. And he was half apologizing for asking me if I'd mind if he gave me about $100,000 worth of advice.

"'Your greatest fault at bat,' said Cobb, 'is that you don't hold your bat tight enough. It swings loosely on your shoulder. Get a good grip on it and then its ready for a full swing any time you decide to take a crack at the ball.'

"In one minute Cobb told me the thing that helped my batting 30 points. And in about five minutes he had told me of my fielding flaws, suggested corrective measures, had encouraged me and given me confidence just when I was losing a little faith in myself."

True in Every Case

What is true in Simmons' case is true in 50 others, so far as Cobb is concerned. There is within him an eagerness to help rookies. In his earliest baseball years he had little or no help; he had to fight his way along, learn by experience. And those were rather dismal years for the sensitive, young Southerner.

Perhaps it was then that he resolved that if ever he arrived among the great, and kids would not resent his advice, that he would give it to them—that he would help them to the limit.

Whether the youngster is teammate or baseball enemy never has made any difference to Cobb. So long as he was a kid trying to make good, and with ability to make good, needing only a little encouragement and advice Cobb didn't wait to be asked.

Was Kid Once

He was a kid once; he was in fear of asking stars to help him. And he knows that kids of today feel the same way. So he studies their play afield and, when he has learned their weaknesses and hit upon the means that may help, he seeks them out, as he sought Simmons.

Soon after the 1928 season began, Cobb began to hear a lot about Kress, the youthful Brownie phenom. When the Athletics played the Browns, the veteran watched very closely the play of the youth. And afterward Cobb looked up Kress.

"You're doing great," he told the kid;—and Kress nearly collapsed in his joy over praise from Cobb, who had been his idol since his barefoot days. Then Cobb hesitated:—

"Would you mind if I give you a couple of pointers?" he asked.

Advised Kress

"I'd be a thousand times glad for even just one from you," replied the Kid.

"Well, don't pay any attention to the averages during the season. If you do they'll worry you, for if you're hitting way up you'll get to worrying about slipping and if you fall off a bit you'll get fearful you're going to strike a slump. So in either case it's bad to look at the averages.

"Stand a little farther away from the plate because, by crowding it, the pitchers, by throwing them in close at you make you hit with the handle of your bat.

"And try to learn a little better the trick of hitting to right field. You hit mostly to left now, with some of your drives going to center. When you can hit to all fields those outfielders won't know where to play for you when you swing at the ball."

Is it any wonder that the kids—and the old timers, too, respect Cobb and admire him not merely for his skill as a player but because of his eagerness to be a friend "when a fellow needs a friend?"

LOUGHRAN AND LATZO BOUT POSTPONED AS RAIN HITS BROOKLYN

Lightheavy Title Scrap Scheduled for Friday; Fighters Train

New York, May 31—Tommy Loughran, lightheavyweight champion and Pete Latzo, former welterweight king, resumed training today to keep themselves on razor edge for their 15-round bout at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tomorrow night. Rain forced a postponement of the bout yesterday.

When Loughran and Latzo weighed in yesterday, the champion came in at exactly 175 pounds. He says he will have no trouble holding the weight. Latzo weighed only 169½ pounds. They will weigh in again tomorrow.

The weather forecast is for fair and warm weather tomorrow.

Loughran has another date at Ebbets Field with Leo Lomski on June 8 and is supposed to take on Jimmy Slattery in the near future.

An effort will be made tomorrow to effect a compromise on the champion's future dates. The Boxing Commission will then hear both sides of the story and probably will request Loughran to meet both Slattery and Lomski but on dates far enough apart to afford the necessary promotion and time for training.

MEMORIAL DAY CARD IS HALTED BY HEAVY RAIN

Urbana, May 31— The second day card of the Ohio Short Ship Racing Circuit will be held here today. Rain halted the Memorial Day card yesterday after Peter Lou, driven by Parshall, had won the first heat of the 2:24: trot. The Memorial Day program will be given today.

"The Blindfold test convinced me

OLD GOLD did not even have a runner-up,"

says MILTON SILLS

MILTON SILLS, popular First National star, whose recent successes are "Burning Daylight", "Valley of the Giants" and "The Flesh's Law".

"It's like deciding a beauty contest in the dark", I said when they told me about the blindfold cigarette test. But the experiment convinced me. The beauty of a cigarette is all inside, and I didn't have to see the label to know that OLD GOLD didn't even have a runner-up. I picked it out readily from the other brands as the smoothest and best cigarette. Now it's always OLD GOLD with me.

Milton Sills

Made from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant

Heart-Leaves . . . are the heart of the matter!

Heart-Leaves are the answer to OLD GOLD's superiority, the reason for their deep-the smoothness, and for the fact that there is "not a cough in a carload." Only the prime-ripe heart-leaves of the tobacco plant are used in this better cigarette. The heavy, coarse lower leaves that ferment the fastest, the quickest ground leaves that accumulate tars are never used. That is why you can pick OLD GOLD even in the dark.

Expect New Homer Record

RUTH SMASHING BALL AS NEVER BEFORE; IS AHEAD OF OLD PACE

Some Predicting Total of 72 Circuit Drives for Season

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, May 31 — Among the many things I find I can do nothing about today is the fact that George H. Ruth, the prominent right fielder, will establish a home run record before the end of the 1928 season that will leave the populace quite agape. It was freely predicted in some of our less reckless this morning that the great man would smite a tall total of 72 for the year and, while I dislike to take issue with intellects so staunch as to approach a column of figures without feeling a sinking sensation in the middle of the ante-room, I still can do no less than point out that such a total would call for a home run every second game. You can call all you want for that kind of thing but it isn't expected to hear you.

Figures On It

Barring accidents and if he maintains his present pace through the remaining 113 games of the Yankee schedule, the boy friend figures to close the books with 68 home runs, eight more than the record he made last year and fourteen more than he compiled in 1921, his first great year. If that isn't enough to make you drink without moderation and grow old disgracefully, permit me to add that his potential 1928 total is 39 more than George scored in 1919 when he bettered the major league record for the first time and everybody thought he was using a loaded bat or his own dice or something.

No, there's nothing I can say against George H. Ruth today, even if I wanted to, which of course I do. There is nothing like a good, old fashioned attack on George to relieve that pent-up feeling, soften the fingertips and take the ink spots out of white cheviot.

Is Way Ahead

I was about due to give him his bimonthly reviling today but all I can say about it is point out that he hit his eighteenth home run on May 29 and that he didn't get his eighteenth in 1927 until June 7. Also that, even with the fact that he hit none at all yesterday, George's total of 18 this year shows only 41 games played, whereas last year he didn't get his eighteenth until the 48th game, and as long as I am in this beatific mood, I might as well point to the fact that George had only 14 home runs by May 30 last year, after which I plan to go out in the garden and eat Lilies of the Valley with the rest of the bridegrooms.

Anyhow, the sum total of these observations is that George Ruth, alias Herman, is seven games, four home runs and eight days ahead of his record and can afford to waste any or all of the advantages enumerated and still have a white man's chance to beat 60 for the year.

WESLEYAN ENTERED IN NATIONAL EVENT

Kane and Lambacher To Participate at Chicago June 9

Delaware, May 31—Dwight Kane, Lancaster, and Norman Lambacher, Independence, will represent the Ohio Wesleyan University track team in the national collegiate meet at Chicago, June 9 Coach George Gauthier announced here today.

Kane, who now rold the Ohio record for both high and low hurdles and who made the best time made by any college hurdler in these events last Saturday, will be entered in both hurdle races at the national meet. Kane's time of 14.8 seconds in winning the 120 yardhigh hurdles at the "Big Six" meet is 1-10 of a second faster than the time in which this event was won at the 1927 national collegiate. Kane's time of 23.6 seconds in the low hurdles is within 1-5 of a second of the winning time in the national collegiate in that event last year.

His records for both events are close to the world records and Coach Gauthier hopes during the two weeks intervening before the national collegiate to have Kane equalling the world records in these events.

SOLOMAN, 71, BURIED TODAY

Rites Held This Morning at Kenton; Brothers and Sisters Survive

Kenton, May 31—Funeral services for Isaac Solomon, 71, former Kenton policeman who died in Antonio Hospital from self-inflicted gun shot wounds in the head, were conducted Thursday morning from the Brindley Mortuary in charge of Rev. H. J. Schumacher, pastor of the Church of Immaculate Conception.

Ill health is believed to have prompted the aged retired officer to attempt his life at his home in Upper Sandusky several days ago. He fired a revolver bullet into his head but the shot failed to touch a vital spot.

He was removed to Marion City Hospital where he lay in a critical condition for nearly a week. He was brought to Antonio hospital this week that relatvies might care for him.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Fred Schutte of Kenton, and Mrs. Jennie Schaffer, Lima; two brothers, Oliver, of Brookville, and H. Solomon, living in Minnesota.

NEGRO FINED

Man Injured in Fight Pleads Guilty to Intoxication Charge

Ben Drake, negro who received cuts about the head and neck and on the right hand in a fight with an unknown Italian on W. Center-st last week, was fined $10 and costs by Municipal Judge W. R. Martin this morning when he pleaded guilty to an intoxication charge. Drake, who refused to disclose the identity of the Italian, was found wandering near Hocking-st by Patrolmen John Wren, bleeding from cuts on the head and hand, and taken to police headquarters and later to the City hospital. According to the police Drake was intoxicated when he engaged in the fight. He is being held at police headquarters pending payment of the fine.

TAKEN HOME

L. P. Landon was removed from City Hospital to his home, 284 Patten-st, this morning in the W. C. Boyd invalid car.

MANY AT DANCE

More than 100 couples attended the round and square dance last night at Rainbow Gardens. Four awards were given during the evening, to the tallest man and woman, and the shortest man and woman. The pavilion was decorated in keeping with Memorial Day, and small flags were given as favors.

INTEREST GROWS

Many Attending Revival Services At Church of Nazarene

Increased interest is reported in the revival in progress with week-night services and daily prayer meetings at First Church of Nazarene.

Last night's service, which was well-attended, was featured by the address of Rev. G. E. Waddle, pastor, on the text, "The master is come and calleth for thee," John, 29:11.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Sutton, evangelists, sang "He Forgot My Sins but Remembered Me." Prayer meeting was held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Smith, 245 N. Heffner-av, and will be held Friday afternoon with Mrs. E. E. Keeler, 806 S. Prospect-st.

COL. STEWART TRIAL SCHEDULED TODAY

Standard Oil Millionaire To Face Court on Contempt Charge

Washington, May 31—Col. Robert W. Stewart, millionaire chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, was scheduled to go on trial for contempt today.

The charge resulted from his refusal to tell the Senate Teapot Dome committee about the division of profits of the Continental Trading Co.'s $3,050,000 Liberty Bond fund. Within a few days after Harry F. Sinclair's acquittal on conspiracy charges, Stewart went before the committee again and answered the question, admitting he received about $750,000 from the deal. His counsel attempted to have the contempt charge dropped because of his answers, but the courts refused.

The government has collected more than $2,000,000 in back taxes from the persons who shared the fund.

If convicted, Stewart faces a fine of not more than $1,000 or a year in jail, or both.

Sinclair, convicted on similar charges, was fined $500 and sentenced to three months. He appealed to the District Court of Appeals and a decision is expected within 10 days.

ROTERS TERRORIZE CITY OF BELGRADE

Streets Are Barricaded as Anti-Italian Turmoil Rages

Vienna, May 31—Belgrade passed through a night of terror with terrific anti-Italian rioting in which at least two persons were killed and 40 others, including nine policemen, were seriously wounded, said advices from that city today. Hundreds were slightly hurt. Sixty arrests were made. Streets were barricaded and gun battles between rioters and police raged in several parts of the city.

The inner quarter of the city was like a battlefield. Many shops and cafes were demolished and the furniture carried into the streets for the erection of barricades.

The population is embittered against the government and police because of their passive attitude in the face of the note presented by Italian minister Rodorro demanding satisfaction and damages without mentioning the anti-Jugoslav demonstrations in Italy.

WOMAN MUST HANG FOR DEATH OF MAN

Mother of Two Children Faces Gallows Unless Appeal Is Granted

Florence, Ariz., May 31—The first women in Arizona to be condemned to death, Mrs. Eva Dugan, 50, mother of two children, stood in the shadow of the gallows today.

Unless an eleventh hour appeal for executive clemency is granted, she will be hanged in the state prison here tomorrow for the murder of A. J. Mathis, 65 year old chicken rancher of Tucson.

Mrs. Dugan was convicted of murder when Mathis' body was dug from a shallow grave on his ranch near Tucson more than a year after he had mysteriously disappeared.

TRAVELS IN PLANE

Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, May 31—A. P. Moore, newly appointed United States ambassador to Peru, who is enroute to Lima to assume his duties, flew across the canal zone by plane from Cristobal to Panama. He was to continue his voyage by steamship this afternoon.

MARION MAN HELD ON SECOND CHARGE

Tom Basios Accused of Speeding and Reckless Driving at Kenton

Kenton, May 31—Tom Basios, Marion, held to the Hardin County grand jury under $300 bond for alleged assault and battery upon Mike Dowd, Harding County farmer, following an automobile wreck east of here two weeks ago, now faces another charge that of speeding and reckless driving.

Affidavit for his arrest was signed by Sheriff John W. Crooks and is the outgrowth of the crash in which the Basios car and one driven by W. W. Madory, collided and wrecked. Mrs. Madory was cut about the head while the 14 occupants of the Marion man's machine escaped.

Basios and party were returning to Marion after having visited friends here.

The alleged assault upon Dowd occurred soon after the crash when it is said, the farmer and Basios exchanged words. The accident occurred in front of the Dowd farm home.

A third case involving suit for $300 damages is on file in the office of Justice Perry T. Shellhouse. It was brought by Madory who also attached Basios' car.

26,000 TICKETS FOR CIRCUS DISTRIBUTED

Advance Sale for Kadgar Grotto Show Now Under Way

The remaining 6,000 of approximately 26,000 tickets for the Kadgar Grotto Circus which is to show here June 11, 12, and 13 were being mailed today. Names were selected at random from the telephone directory and each person was mailed four tickets.

Three hundred and thirty-four books containing 60 tickets each have been placed with members of the lodge and other individuals for distribution. While no definite reports have been received at headquarters in the Masonic Temple, indications are that the ticket sale will be large. Intensive ticket campaign was started last Monday.

The Flying Franklins, one of the most remarkable aerial return casting acts in circusdom, will be one of the feature attractions of the Grotto circus it is announced.

The circus will be held on the Arnoult show grounds, N. Prospect-st, with two shows daily at 2:30 and 8 o'clock. There will be intermingled in the program a number of horse, pony and other animal acts.

The foremost of the ring numbers promises to be Rhoda Royal's famous dancing horses, "Silver" and "Denver", which are known as among the most intelligent and remarkable horses in training. Presented by Miss Carrie Royal, these perfectly trained equines will be one of the high lights of the performance, as well as Morton's Military Ponies, the wrestling bears, the riding monkeys, the bucking mules and other animal numbers.

SUPERINTENDENT OF MINE IS STILL ALIVE

New Yorker Carried into Interior of Nicaragua by Rebel Captors

Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, May 31—George B. Marshall, of New York, assistant superintendent of La Luz Mine, who was seized by Guerrillas on April 12 when the mine was raided, has been carried into the interior of Nicaragua by his captors, but early this month was still alive and apparently in good health according to word received here today.

Captain Edison, U. S. M. C., who is pursuing the rebels in the interior sent a report to Colonel Utley by airplane that General Jiron and his rebel forces, who had raided much American owned property, passed through Casa Vieya, early in the month and that Marshall was with them. Natives said Marshall was well treated and not confined.

Owing to the long absence of news fears were felt for Marshall's safety.

NEW MILLION DOLLAR BRIDGE IS DEDICATED

Structure Across Ohio River Open to Gallipolis-Mt. Pleasant Traffic

Gallipolis, May 31—The Gallipolis-Pt. Pleasant "Silver Bridge," the new million dollar highway span across the Ohio River, was today open to traffic following the dedication services held yesterday afternoon at which about 15,000 people attended.

Gov. Howard M. Gore, of West Virginia, and Lieut. Gov. William G. Pickrel, of Ohio, were present on the speakers platform at the dedication. The address of the day was given by Senator M. M. Neely, of West Virginia.

The bridge is 2,235 feet long.

The only other bridge that may be compared to the "Silver Bridge" is the Florianopolis Bridge in Brazil.

FINED BY JUDGE

Akron Man Pleads Guilty to Liquor Charge

Herbert M. Gilmer, of Akron, was fined $100 and costs by Judge W. R. Martin in municipal court this morning, when he pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor. Gilmer was arrested by Capt. F. E. Tabler of the Erie police, in the Erie yards last night. A flask, a bottle partly filled and a full pint of alleged whisky was found in his possession. He is being held at police headquarters pending payment of the fine.

HUMAN TORCH

Boys See Man Burn Self to Death in Road

Danville, Ill., May 31—A group of small boys looked on, horror-stricken, today when Garfield Jacobs, 65, committed suicide by igniting his clothing which had been previously soaked with coal oil.

His clothing a mass of flames, Jacobs twice raised himself from the middle of a highway near here where he killed himself, and warned the boys against attempting to aid him.

ARMY BALLOON WINS NATIONAL AIR RACE

Two Men Killed and Three Injured in Ill-Fated Contest

Pittsburgh, May 31—The Army balloon No. 1, landed at Weems, Va., at 6:10 a. m., according to a telegram received at the national elimination balloon races headquarters here today.

The Army No. 1 was the only bag to remain aloft after storm forced the 13 other entries down and thus wins the race.

A telegram from Capt. W. E. Kepner, pilot of the balloon, read:

"Landed Weems, Virginia, 6:10 a. m., May 31." Assuming the time to be Eastern Standard, the balloon was aloft 13 hours.

The Army No. 1 was the only entry in the national elimination balloon races to weather a storm which sent two men to their deaths and injured two others. The ill-fated contest began before a crowd of more than 100,000 fans at Bettis Field, McKeesport, late yesterday.

Lieut. Paul Evert, pilot of Army balloon No. 3, was killed when the bag was struck by lightning over Youngwood, Pa., while Walter W. Morton, aide to Ward T. Van Orman, pilot of the Goodyear V, sustained fatal injuries when the balloon crashed at Irwin, Pa.

Lieut. Van Orman sustained a broken leg while J. F. Cooper, aide in the City of Cleveland, was severely shocked when the bag was struck by lightning. Carl K. Wollam, pilot of the city of Cleveland, escaped unhurt.

SENATOR FESS WILL SEEK ANOTHER TERM

Declaration as Candidate for Renomination at Primaries Filed

Columbus, May 31—U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow prings, Republican, Ohio's senior member of the upper house today filed with secretary of State Clarence J. Brown his official declartion as a candidate to succeed himself for the full six-year term beginning March 4, 1929.

His candidacy, subject to nomination at the Ohio G. O. P. primary on August 14, next, was endorsed by Nicholas Longworth, Cincinnati, speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives, and by Congressmen John G. Cooper, Youngstown; C. Ellis Moore, Cambridge; William M. Morgan, Newark, and B. Frank Murphy, Steubenville, all of whom signed his declaration.

Fess, who is serving his first term in the U. S. Senate, is a former president of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Greene County. He was chairman at the last Ohio Republican convention and is scheduled to deliver the "keynote" speech at the Republican national convention at Kansas City next month as temporary chairman.

YOUTHS CONFESS TO 40 SAFE ROBBERIES

Cleveland Scene of Activities of Four Gang Members

Cleveland, May 31—Four youths, all of Lorain, have confessed to more than 40 recent safe robberies in Cleveland, according to local police today.

Capture of two of the four, effected Sunday when police caught them attempting to open a safe in a lumber company office here, led to arrest of the other two men. Clarence Meyers, 22, garage mechanic, is said by police to have been the ringleader of the quartet. The other three alleged members of the gang are:

Thomas Warren, 22; Edward Minnich, 21 and Herman Zeigler, 21. Meyers, detectives say, has served time in Mansfield Reformatory.

THREE MEET DEATH IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Pilot and Two Passengers Killed as Craft Falls 1,000 Feet

Detroit, May 31—An airplane pilot and his two passengers were added to the list of holiday victims when their plane nose-dived from an altitude of 1,000 feet and crashed on a farm near here last night.

The victims, all Detroiters, were: Homer Wells, the pilot; Victor and Julius Slambrouck, brothers.

The Slambrouck brothers, both married, were crushed under the motor and died instantly. Wells died a few moments after he had been extricated from the wreckage.

The plane, according to investigation by Macomb County sheriff's office, had been engaged in taking up passengers for short flights.

DR. AND MRS. G. T. HARDING TO RETURN HOME TONIGHT

Dr. and Mrs. George T. Harding will return tonight to their home, E. Center-st, after a six months' stay with friends and relatives in California. For a time during their stay in California they were the guests of Dr. Harding's daughter, Mrs. E. E. Sternberg, and family.

SMITH IN RACE

CARL W. SMITH

Kenton, May 31—Carl W. Smith, whose candidacy for the nomination for secretary of state was filed recently, is a newspaper man. After 20 years of experience in the daily newspaper field, Smith established The Ohio Review, a Democratic magazine, of which he is editor and publisher. He also formerly served as editor of The Marion Tribune, Marion. He is a veteran of the World War and active in the American Legion. When the United States entered the war Smith was postmaster of Kenton, and exempt from military service. He waived exemption, secured leave of absence and enlisted as a private.

the Eagles Drum Corps, was made up of various fraternal organizations, while the third division headed by the Municipal Band was composed of local military organizations followed by the Boy Scouts and members of the G. A. R. in automobiles.

Col. George B. Christian presided as chairman of the program at the cemetery with Dr. J. W. McMurry as vice chairman. Following an overture by massed bands, the audience was led by A. C. Queen in singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Following the invocation by Rev. Earl L. Holliday, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church, the audience was led by Mr. Queen in singing "The Tie That Binds."

Reads Logan Order

The order of General Logan issued on May 5, 1868 creating Decoration Day was read by Charles Wiley, commander of Cooper Post, G. A. R., and Lincoln's Gettysburg address was read by Reverend Holliday, the first time since establishing of the custom of reading the address that it has ever been read by any but a veteran of the Civil War. Shiller Fogelson, whose death occurred several months ago, had read the address for many years. The first part of the program closed with the singing of "America" by the audience led by Mr. Queen, and a salute to the flag.

After paying a beautiful tribute to the veterans of the Civil War as well as to those of the Spanish-American and World Wars for the part each had played in establishing and maintaining the principles which have made this country the greatest in the world, Lieut. Col. William M. Mumm, of Columbus, head officer of the Ohio unit of the Army Reserve Corps, who was the speaker of the day, sounded a warning of the danger which he said now threatens these principles.

Taking as the theme of his address Lincoln's statement in his Gettysburg address: "It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have so nobly advanced," the speaker launched an attack on these organizations of the country which he charged are seeking to tear down and destroy the very principles for which thousands have "given the full measure of devotion."

Names Organizations

The American Civil Liberty Union, founded by Roger Baldwin, the Woman's International League for Peace and Freedom, fostered by Jane Adams of Hull House fame, the National Council for the Prevention of War, were among the associations which were charged with Col. Mumm with seeking to destroy the government.

Abolishing of the army, the navy, national guard units and even Boy and Girl Scouts, which he said is a part of the principles of the Woman's International League for Peace and Freedom, was portrayed as being most foolish, by Col. Mumm, who compared a country without such defense with that of a home with the family jewels piled on a table with the doors and windows open and the house deserted.

The army, the navy and other military organizations were declared by the speaker to be the best preventive of war. The military man does not want war, he loves his home and family the same as other men and the last thing in the world he wants is to leave those he loves for the battlefield, it was pointed out by the speaker.

It is the home or the nation with the best system of defense that is avoided by those who would attack, the speaker contended, and for that reason he declared that, to abolish the army, navy and all national defense, would be to extend an invitation to those nations of the world who now hate and envy us, to enter and help themselves.

TRACING CALL

"Fireman, Save My Child" Plea Over Phone Being Probed

Someone with a perverted idea of a joke, called the central fire station shortly before eight o'clock last night, reporting that a child had drowned in a cistern at 304 N. Prospect-st. Chief McFarland with several firemen from the central station responded with the life saving equipment only to find there was no such number and an investigation revealed that there had been no drowning. The call was traced to Barnhart-st. An investigation is being made by fire officials to determine the house from which it came.

HOLD SERVICES FOR GALION YOUTH TODAY

Michael Liscano, 19, Found Dead in Car Near Galion

Galion, May 31—A verdict of suicide was given by Coroner J. George Mannhardt in the case of Michael Liscano, 19, who was found dead shortly after noon Tuesday. Liscano's body was found in his Chevrolet roadster which had been parked on the County Line-rd, south of the city, an automatic revolver in his hand, a deep bullet wound in his temple.

Walter Post, a farmer residing south of Galion, first noticed the car parked by the side of the road at 9 o'clock Monday night. When at noon yesterday he noticed that the car was still in the same spot his suspicions were aroused and upon investigation he found Liscano dead. Coroner Mannhardt, Chief of Police Frank Cook, Constable George Gwinner and Sheriff Harvey Ulmer were called. Mannhardt, after an investigation, declared that Liscano had been dead at least 12 hours when discovered.

Liscano's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephan Liscano, 445 South-st, could give no motive for the suicide. He had appeared in good spirits Monday night and had taken his mother for a drive. He was employed at the Galion Iron Works and Manufacturing Co., and besides his parents is survived by a brother and sister.

Rev. Fr. Michael McFadden of St. Patrick's Church officiated at the funeral services held this morning from the home of Liscano parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Liscano, South-st. Burial was made in Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

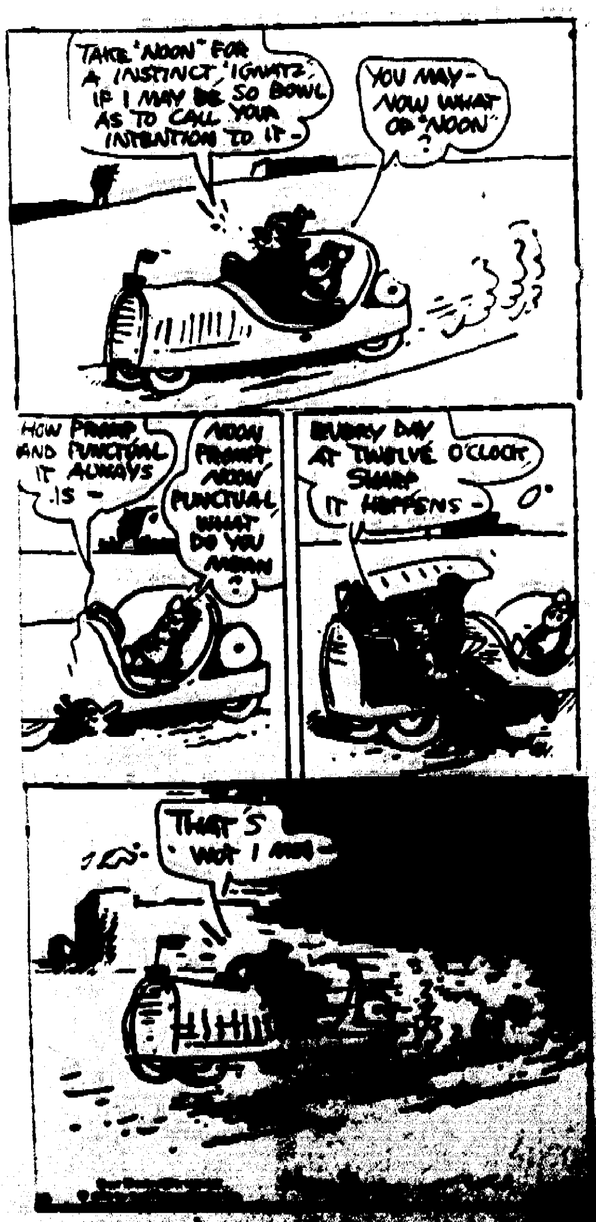
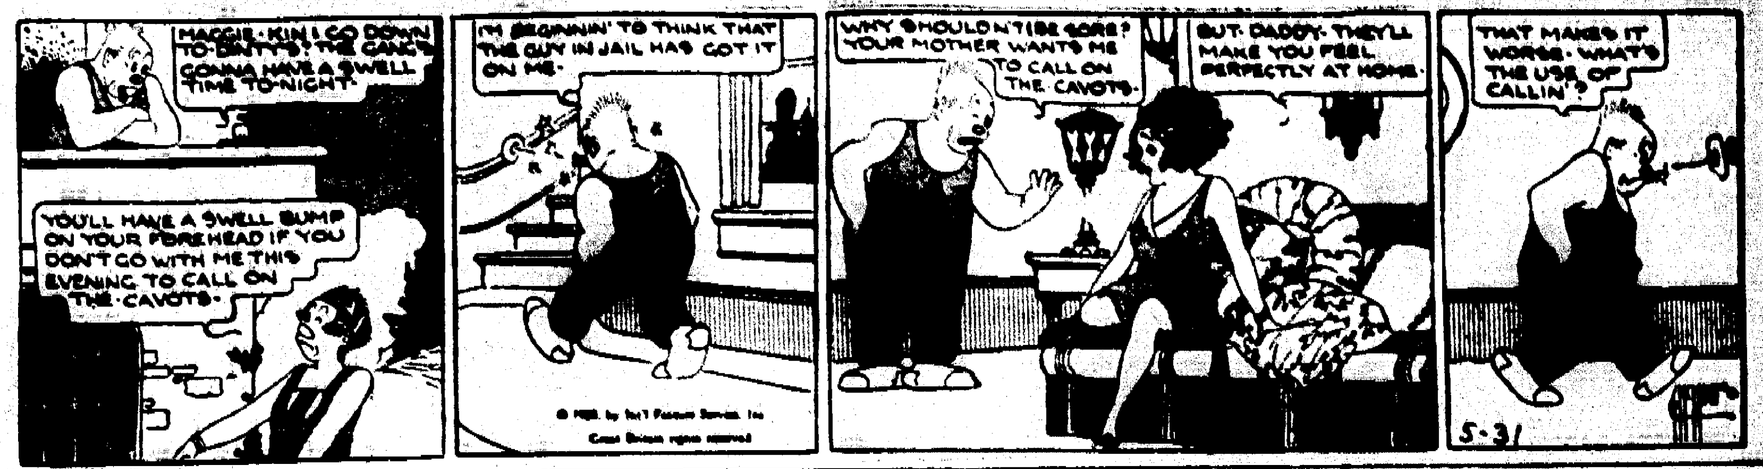
JUST KIDS — BY AD CARTER

KRAZY KAT — BY HERRIMAN



TAKE "NOON" FOR A INSTINCT 'IGNATZ' IF I MAY BE SO BOWL AS TO CALL YOUR INTENTION TO IT -
YOU MAY - NOW WHAT OF "NOON"?
HOW PRIMP AND FUNCTIONAL IT ALWAYS IS -
NOON PROMPT NOON PUNCTUAL WHAT DO YOU MEAN
BUSHY DAY AT TWELVE O'CLOCK SHARP IT HAPPENS -
THAT'S WOT I MEAN -

BRINGING UP FATHER — BY GEORGE McMANUS



MAGGIE - KIN I GO DOWN TO BINTY'S? THE GANG'S GONNA HAVE A SWELL TIME TO-NIGHT.
YOU'LL HAVE A SWELL BUMP ON YOUR FOREHEAD IF YOU DON'T GO WITH ME THIS EVENING TO CALL ON THE CAVOTS.
I'M BEGINNIN' TO THINK THAT THE GUY IN JAIL HAS GOT IT ON ME.
WHY SHOULDN'T I BE SORE? YOUR MOTHER WANTS ME TO CALL ON THE CAVOTS.
BUT DADDY THEY'LL MAKE YOU FEEL PERFECTLY AT HOME.
THAT MAKES IT WORSE. WHAT'S THE USE OF CALLIN'?

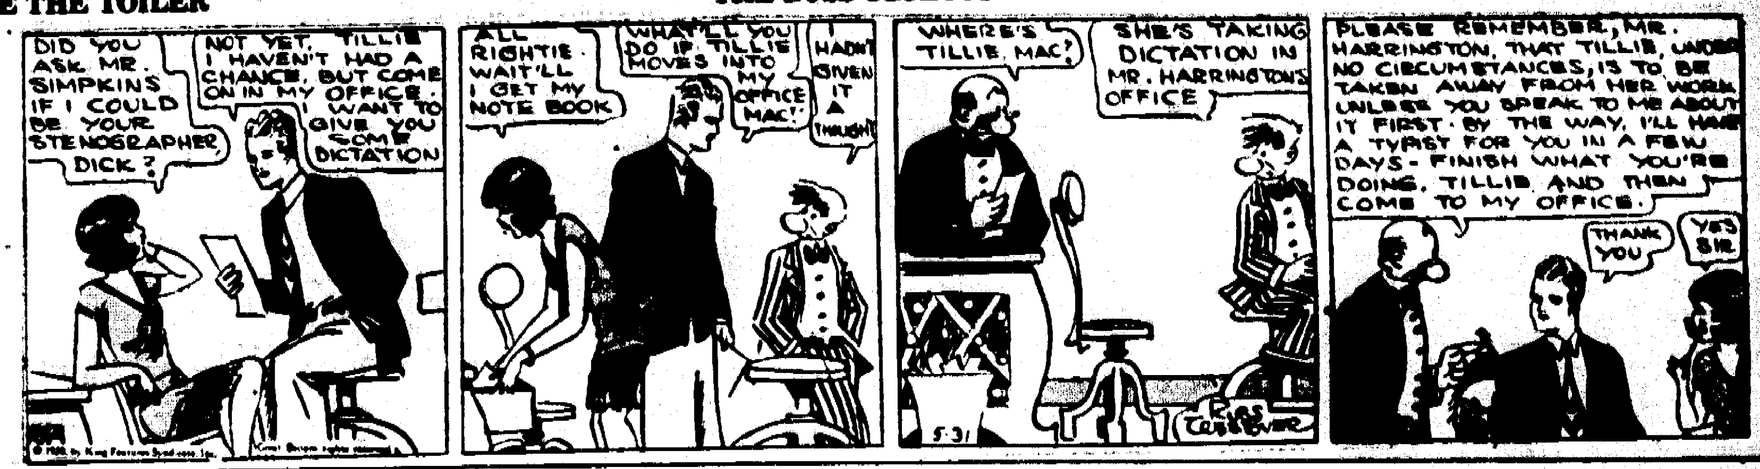
TILLIE THE TOILER — THE BOSS OBJECTS — BY RUSS WESTOVER



DID YOU ASK MR. SIMPKINS IF I COULD BE YOUR STENOGRAPHER, DICK?
NOT YET, TILLIE I HAVEN'T HAD A CHANCE, BUT COME ON IN MY OFFICE. I WANT TO GIVE YOU SOME DICTATION
ALL RIGHTIE. WAIT'LL I GET MY NOTE BOOK
WHAT'LL YOU DO IF TILLIE MOVES INTO MY OFFICE MAC?
I HADN'T GIVEN IT A THOUGHT
WHERE'S TILLIE, MAC?
SHE'S TAKING DICTATION IN MR. HARRINGTON'S OFFICE
PLEASE REMEMBER, MR. HARRINGTON, THAT TILLIE, UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES, IS TO BE TAKEN AWAY FROM HER WORK UNLESS YOU SPEAK TO ME ABOUT IT FIRST. BY THE WAY, I'LL HAVE A TYPIST FOR YOU IN A FEW DAYS - FINISH WHAT YOU'RE DOING, TILLIE AND THEN COME TO MY OFFICE.
THANK YOU
YES SIR.

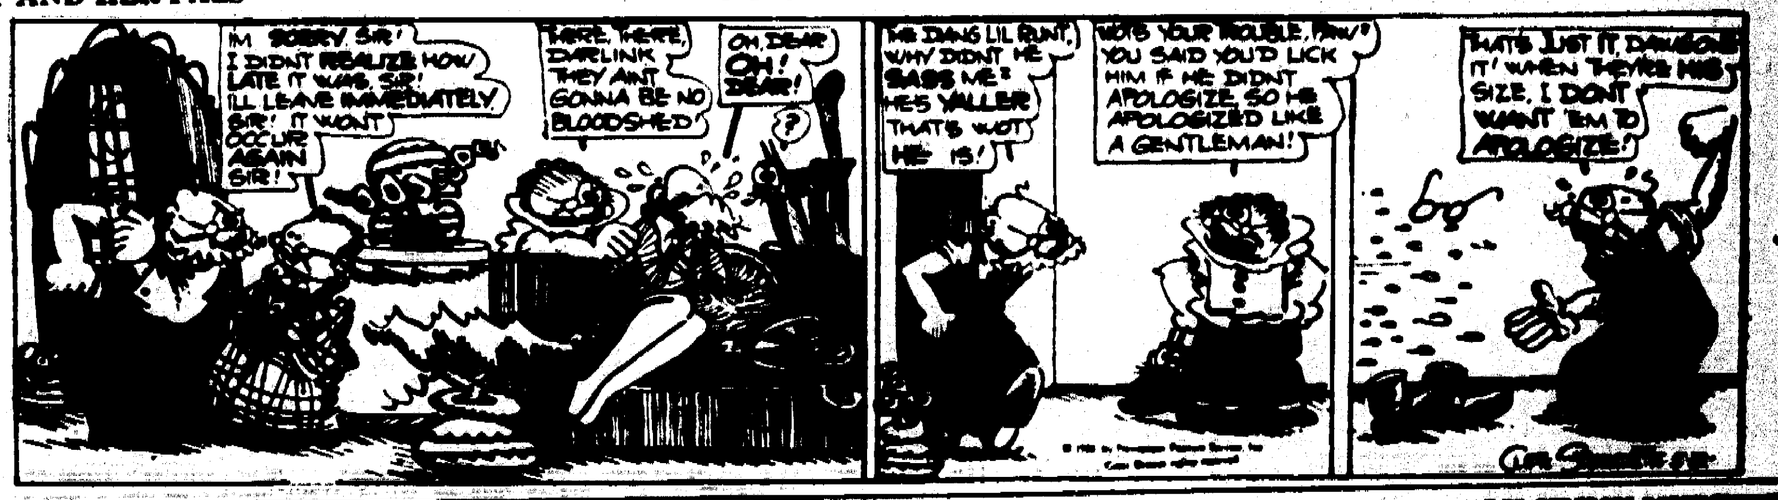
THE GUMPS — WHAT EVERY MOTHER WOULD LIKE TO KNOW — BY SIDNEY SMITH

WHAT HAVE THE FUTURE YEARS IN STORE FOR MINE YOUNG HERO? SHALL FORTUNE SMILE OR FROWN - WILL HE BE THE HEADLINER OR ONLY AMONG THOSE PRESENT?
GOLIATH
WHAT KIND OF HAIR WILL HE HAVE?
WILL IT BE CURLY HAIR LIKE THIS -
OR WILL HE BE THE PROFESSIONAL TYPE WITH A POMPADOUR -
TORTOISE SHELL GLASSES AND A VAN DYKE BEARD
HOW WOULD HE LOOK AS A FIREMAN?
OR POLICEMAN
AS BRIDGE TENDER
A BUSY NIGHT AT THE OPEN DOOR
A'LA TOM MIX IN A TEN GALLON HAT
THE JOLLY TAR
SUPPOSE HE TURNED CHINAMAN -
GRACIOUS!!
WHAT IF HE BECAME A WICKED DESPERADO -
AS A DRUM MAJOR
COAL MINER
WILL HE ALWAYS REMAIN A MINER?
A SHOEMAKER
OR IF THE WORST COMES TO THE WORST HE MIGHT RESEMBLE HIS FATHER -

POLLY AND HER PALS — NO APOLOGIES — BY CLIFF STERRETT



I'M SORRY SIR! I DIDN'T REALIZE HOW LATE IT WAS, SIR! I'LL LEAVE IMMEDIATELY SIR! IT WON'T OCCUR AGAIN SIR!
THERE, THERE, DARLINK THEY AIN'T GONNA BE NO BLOODSHED
OH, DEAR! OH! DEAR!
HE DANG LIL RUNT! WHY DIDN'T HE SASS ME? HE'S YALLER THAT'S WOT HE IS!
WOTS YOUR TROUBLE, PAW? YOU SAID YOU'D LICK HIM IF HE DIDN'T APOLOGIZE, SO HE APOLOGIZED LIKE A GENTLEMAN!
THAT'S JUST IT, DANGONE IT! WHEN THEY'RE HIS SIZE, I DON'T WANT 'EM TO APOLOGIZE!

TOOTS AND CASPER — HAPPY PROSPECTS — BY JIMMY MURPHY

A PHOTOGRAPHER FROM THE "DAILY SCREAM" TOOK TOOTSIES PHOTO YESTERDAY, CASPER, AND SHE CAN HARDLY WAIT TO SEE IT IN PRINT! SHE SAYS SHE WANTS ABOUT 50 COPIES OF THE PAPER WHEN IT APPEARS!
DON'T WORRY TOOTS, I KNOW THE PHOTO WILL BE A GOOD ONE!
GEE I WONDER IF I BLINKED MY EYES IN IT?
I WISH I COULD SEE A PROOF OF THE PHOTO BEFORE THEY PRINT IT, CASPER!
TUT, TUT, TOOTS! I'M SURE IT WILL LOOK FINE BUT YOU'RE SO PRETTY, YOU COULDN'T LOOK ANYWAY BUT NICE!
TOOTS IS SO HAPPY ABOUT HER PICTURE GOING IN PRINT! ALL SHE WANTS NOW IS FOR SOMEONE TO GIVE A MOVIE TO THE PAPER!

Dodge Debenture Bonds Soar 12 Points Following Consolidation

Markets at a Glance

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

New York, May 31—Speculation in the market today centered chiefly in motors, mercantile and a few of the rails and specialties. The Chrysler-Dodge deal had been quite fully discounted in advance of the official announcement after the close of Tuesday's market, and further progress was made by the heavy offerings of stock in the taking. Studebaker, Packard, Cleveland, Nash, Mack Trucks, Manufacturing and Hupp sold up two points on the average.

Other market conditions were sharply mixed in an effort to find any argument on which to base forecasts of lower rates after the turn of the month. Interest and divided payments before the middle of next week will be approximately $473,000,000, a large part of which will find its way back to the banks without delay. With the whole country entering into speculative commitments on an unprecedented scale, it requires money and plenty of it to keep the wheels turning.

The six per cent debenture bonds of the Dodge Corporation sold today at 99, against Tuesday low price of 87, reflecting the strong position of the bonds in the consolidation. The preferred stocks sold at 82, or four points below Chrysler common, the difference representing the additional "rights" values of the Chrysler stock. Dodge common, which is to be taken in at one share to five, slumped to around 17, against Tuesday's price of 21 3-4. The motors constituted the most active action of the big board, and rumors of other mergers were freely circulated in the financial district.

Cotton

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the County Commissioners of Marion County, Ohio, in Marion, Ohio, until noon, June 21, 1928, at one (1) o'clock P. M. (Eastern or local time), for furnishing all the material and doing all the labor required for completion of the following described improvement, in accordance with the plans and specifications therefor on file in the office of said Board of Commissioners, viz:

Erection of a NEW BOILER and STACK at Marion County Children's Home, Marion County, Ohio, in accordance with drawings and specifications therefor, prepared by Wood and Ingleson, Architects and Engineers, Columbus, Ohio and J. H. Associate, Marion, Ohio and as approved by the Board of County Commissioners on September 15th 1927, as amended by said Board of April 6, 1928, the elimination of all provisions for alternative proposals, which plans, specifications and an estimate of cost are now on file in the office of the Commissioners of Marion County, where the inspection of all interested parties and copies thereof, together with forms of proposal and information desired may be obtained from the office of the Architects, Wood and Ingleson, 30-31 N. High St., Columbus, Ohio, or J. H. Moore, Associate, Marion, Ohio.

The estimated cost of the improvement, for erection complete, for commencement of work in 1928. Date for completion of contract by Sept. 1, 1928.

Proposals are requested to be presented at the above named time and place at which all proposals will be publicly opened, read and examined and an award made at that time or at such later time to which consideration of said bids may be duly adjourned, as provided by law.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check on some solvent bank for an amount equal to ten (10) per cent of the estimated cost of the improvement, made payable to the order of the Commissioners of Marion County, for the benefit of said County, which shall be forfeited by the successful bidder in case they fail to enter into contract and bond within five days from the date of award of contract.

The successful bidders will be required to give a bond in an amount equal to 100 per cent of the estimated cost of the work, with sureties or a surety company to the approval and satisfaction of the said Board of Commissioners, for the proper construction and completion of the work.

Bidders will be required to give satisfactory evidence of experience and the amount and character of equipment.

Bids must be signed by all parties interested in the contract.

By order of the Board of Commissioners of Marion County, Ohio, dated May 21, 1928.

T. A. O'LEARY
Clerk of Board

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

But little change in vegetable and fruit prices from the figures of early in the week was reported by dealers here today. Ample supplies of practically all fruits and vegetables were available with buying reported as only fair.

Strawberries continue plentiful and varieties of fairly good quality sold as low as 15 cents Tuesday. Prices were slightly higher today, ranging from 18 to 25 cents. Dealers report an increase in the demand for pineapples at 15, 20 and 30 cents. Some pineapples were being offered as low as 10 cents. The quality was poor, however and dealers report buying light.

New potatoes, holding at five pounds for 25 cents, are increasing in demand as the quality of the old stock becomes less desirable. Old potatoes were being offered at from 30 to 35 cents a peck. Cabbage continues plentiful and good quality stock was selling today at 10 cents a pound. Cucumbers are holding at 20 and 25 cents and asparagus at 15 cents a bunch. Green beans and peas are both plentiful today and dealers were reporting a ready demand at 20 cents. Leaf vegetables are plentiful. Leaf lettuce is holding at 18 cents, head lettuce at 10, 15 and 20 cents and spinach at two pounds for 25 cents.

Cantaloupes were slightly more plentiful and were moving slowly at 15, 20 and 25 cents. Oranges continue to sell at a wide range of prices. Small fruit was selling at 25 cents and larger sizes at 65 cents. Lemons were being quoted at 45 cents and bananas at 10 cents a pound or three pounds for 25 cents.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago May 31—Stock exchanges and principal commodity markets of the country, with the exception of the New Orleans cotton exchange, were closed yesterday in observance of Memorial Day.

Traders resumed operations in the grain markets at the Board of Trade this morning, but not, perhaps, where they left off.

Although the general picture of the situation remains the same, some new details have been put into the foreground by the break of Tuesday, which may for a time produce a different effect on the observer.

This is the last delivery day on May contracts. What it will bring forth remains to be seen. What takes place in the May future may have a decided influence on the other futures.

If the price of offers meant anything—which it most certainly does not, or, beyond an expression of opinion which is wrong more often than it is right—May wheat would seem to be dangerous for shorts today. The offers sold as high as 1.62 on Tuesday, 17½ above the closing price of the future. They close at 1.58.

May Well Cleaned Out

There may, however, have been such a cleaning out of May wheat in the Tuesday break that very little covering would find little wheat for sale and might carry prices up a couple.

If the market opens lower and looks very weak at the outset, but seems to hesitate in its downward course, it will, perhaps, be unwise to press the short side. It would not be at all surprising if all the selling of Tuesday left the market in at least a temporarily oversold condition in which it could respond quickly and eagerly to any buying of moment.

If wheat shows strength at the outset, on the other hand, the market probably will draw reserved selling on advances. It is quite likely to be erratic and keep the pit dashing in and out in attempts to get into the right stride.

Wheat has had a big break from the top prices and if it sells on the market usually does under such circumstances it will create selling that takes liberties with it. Possibly the corn will be bullish, but that may have already been largely discounted. [illegible] in that market without a struggle.

There is a lot of long corn held in that market—bought at under the present level of prices—which has not yet come out.

Ultimately, if the bulls are right in their premises and conclusions, they will get a high price for this corn. If they are wrong they will suffer commensurately.

At present they still believe they are right. Psychologically, the greatest weakness in the bull position at the present time is this confidence. But until they are convinced beyond question that the old corn situation will not force very high prices for July and September futures, they are not likely to let go of corn that they have carried up to a much higher level and that still shows a paper profit down where it is now.

Inspection of the country yesterday by many traders yielded evidence to them of the excellence of the outlook of the new corn crop. They may be slow to crowd the nearby futures on the short side if those show strength, but they are not unlikely to sell a little December corn now and then.

Tragedy Ends Dispute over Baseball Glove

Washington, May 31—Joseph Cook, 17-year-old western high school student, was dead here today and his schoolmate, Steve P. Kerrigan, 18, was under arrest following Washington's first sandlot baseball tragedy. The youths had engaged in a mat fight over a baseball glove, and after being struck a hard blow to the jaw, Cook fell to the ground unconscious. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital.

Lack of Area Testing for Cattle Threatens Handicap for Mills Producers Here

Two Cities Place Ban on Milk from Any but Tubercular Tested Cows, City Inspector Is Informed; Commissioners Urged To Adopt County Area System

That Marion County farmers and dairymen may encounter some difficulty in the future in disposing of their milk and cream as the result of the absence of the county area testing for tuberculosis in cows, was intimated in a letter received today by Dr. J. F. Gruber, city milk inspector, from W. B. Johnston, president of the Westerville Creamery of Westerville, O.

The health departments of both Cleveland and Akron, the letter states, have put a ban on milk produced from any but tubercular tested cows and since Marion County is without the county area testing, the writer expressed the fear that his company would be barred from selling in those cities, cream purchased from Marion County farmers and dairymen.

The Westerville man stated he had been in this city for the purpose of taking the matter up with the county commissioners but did not succeed in arranging an interview and that he would seek to have the date for enforcing the ban in Cleveland extended pending the adoption of the county area test in Marion County.

Others May Take Same Stand

The writer also expressed the belief that absence of the county area test will in the near future prove a handicap to Marion County milk producers as more cities join the stand taken by the two cities of the northern part of the state.

The county area testing plan differs from the one now used by the city milk inspector here, in that, through funds supplied by the county and state, the owner of any cows found suffering from tuberculosis is reimbursed for his loss, while under the plan now in use, any cows ordered killed by the city inspector, represent a total loss to the owner.

Waldo, Tully and Pleasant Township milk producers have signed petitions asking for establishing of the county area testing plan in this county while petitions are now being circulated in other townships, it was said today. While apparently favoring the plan, county commissioners have thus far failed to provide the county's portion of the money needed. The cost to the county has been estimated at between $300 and $350 a township, depending upon the number of cases of tuberculosis discovered.

Tennis clubs in England have an aggregate membership of 250,000, as compared with a total of 80,000 club members in the United States.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store.—Adv.

BREAKFAST MEETING HELD BY MASONS

Breakfast Follows Early Morning Session at Masonic Temple

Two hundred and thirty-six members of Marion Lodge No. 70, F. & A. M. attended the annual sunrise breakfast of the lodge at the Masonic Temple yesterday morning.

The breakfast is an annual affair, held each Memorial Day morning. Originally the event was intended as a Memorial service for deceased members of the lodge. This year, however, the lodge held its Memorial services last Sunday with a Lodge of Sorrow.

The breakfast at 6:30 a. m. followed the regular meeting. David E. Montgomery, worshipul master, and other lodge officers were in charge of the meeting.

Included in the number present were two veterans of the Civil War, a number of Spanish American war and World War veterans. Singing of patriotic songs was in charge of Asa Queen.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL CLASS ENTERTAINED

Seniors Are Guests of Juniors at Dinner and Dance Event

One of the most enjoyable affairs planned for seniors of St. Mary's Parochial School was the dinner and dance at which they were entertained as guests of the junior class Tuesday night at Hotel Harding. A feature of the program was a talk by Rev. John T. Hannahan, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, on the subject, "High Aims of Life." Dancing in the ballroom which was decorated in the senior class colors of green and white, followed. Chaperones were Mrs. Henry Neidig and Mrs. Joseph Miller.

The members of the senior class, who will graduate June 14, are: Vincent Faulkner, president; Beatrice Myers, vice president; Mary Murphy, secretary; John Hayden, treasurer and Clara Orthmyer, Madeline Neyhart, Cecelia Kilg, Rosella Moran, Irene Rowe, Catherine Mullee, Kathleen Tobin, May Hannegan, Madeline McFarland, Gertrude Mulee, Eileen Keegan, Irene Neidig, Margaret Feidner, Bernard Ruffing, Clifford Hogan, Dominic Farruggio, Robert O'Connor and John Sheehe.

Members of the junior class, who gave the party, are Robert Dwyer, president, Helen Dugger, vice president, Catherine Kraft, secretary, Harold Tobin, treasurer, and Catherine Gafney, Catherine Hoctor, Louise Conroy, Louise Bender, Mary Reid, Anna Murphy, Mildred Burke, Catherine Robbins, Adele Kerrigan, Mary Miller, Jenny Farruggio, Margaret Drake, John Ballinger, Eugene Gunder, Donald Brown, Edward Neidig, Robert McAndrews, Charles Simonis and Vincent Moran.

RITES TODAY FOR J. J. PFLEIDERER

Crawford County Livestock Shipper Succumbs in Monnett Hospital

Bucyrus, May 31—Funeral services for Jacob J. Pfleiderer, one of Crawford County's most prominent livestock shippers, former Liberty Township trustee and last year adjuster for the Crawford County Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co., will be held at his former home four and one-half miles north of Bucyrus this afternoon. The services will be conducted by Rev. C. H. Kern, pastor of the Evangelical Church of which Mr. Pfleiderer was a members.

Mr. Pfleiderer's death occurred at 11:55 o'clock Monday morning at Monnett Hospital following an accident May 2, in which he broke a limb, in attempting to step from a bath cabinet. Death was caused by complications.

Besides his wife, Mary Chambers Pfleiderer, he is survived by six children and nine grand children.

PROGRAM PRESENTED BY SCHOOL PUPILS

Community Dinner Is Held at Campbell School, Marking Close of Year

An entertainment and community dinner Tuesday night at the Campbell School, south of Marion, marked the closing of the school term this year. Miss Hazel Porter, teacher at the school, was in charge of the program.

A song, "Welcome," sung by the school, opened the program, and the welcome address was given by Hugh Warren McFadden and Dorothy Jane Lucas.

"Graduating Time," a recitation, was given by Barbara Jean Thomas, and another recitation was given by Rosella Orians. Mabel Bentley entertained with an instrumental solo, and "His First Speech," a recitation, was given by Howard Thomas.

Dorothy and Doris Strawser were heard in a dialogue, and a son, "Just a Little Pansy," was sung by the school. Two playlets, "Bertha As a Teacher," "That Calf," and a play, "Reformation of Aunt Hannah," were given.

Those taking part in the productions were Mabel Butler, Doris and Delphia Sweeningen, Ethel Keener, Kathryn Cooper, Hazel Orians, Mary Lucille, Esther and John Storer, Devere Lucas, Merald Thomas, William and Oliver Hagan and Hugh Warren McFadden.

The primary grade entertained with a song, "Circus Day," and a recitation, "My Own," was given by June Keener. "Blossom Bells," was sung by the entire school, and Iva Storer closed the program with a recitation, "Goodbye."

RICHMAN'S CLOTHES

BLUE SUITS

Every man needs at least one good blue suit—and these meet all the requirements of business or semi-dress. Vanskuck's famous blue serges, blue cheviots, and silk striped blue worsteds of fine texture and splendid wearing qualities—smart single and double-breasted models, tailored with characteristic Richman care and precision.

The greatest variety of blues in town—all at $22.50.
White flannel trousers, for evening wear with your blue coat—$5.00.

"JUNIORS" for Graduation or Confirmation

Made of the same fine all-wool fabrics, and with the same good workmanship you see in Richman's suits for men. Dark blue serges, cheviots, and worsteds—cut in single and double-breasted University styles, and honestly tailored to stand a lot of hard wear—quality and value you do not see, ordinarily, in suits for boys' wear.

In addition to blues, there are many other fabrics in a wide selection of new shades—and a complete range of sizes from 14 to 19 years.

Your choice of any suit—coat, vest and long trousers —at $22.50.

SEEKS DAMAGES AND AUTO IN CASE HERE

Police and Fire Chiefs Defendants in Liquor Car Suit

Suit to replevin an automobile taken in a liquor raid, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Louis Parisi, said to be from Akron, against James W. Thompson, chief of police, and Thomas J. McFarland, chief of the fire department. Parisi also asks for damages of $200 for detention of the car.

The petition of the plaintiff was filed by Attorney Edward C. King.

The car was seized by a squad of police headed by Capt. Ira Shrock on the Harding Highway, just east of Marion, about 4:30 o'clock on the morning of April 22. One hundred gallons of liquor was stored in the tonneau of the car.

When arraigned in police court Parisi pleaded guilty and was fined $1,000.

The car has been used by the fire department since the raid.

"Now! I am right—"

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, steady, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

"FORTUNATELY, I found myself in time. I was going down! down! down! I didn't want to eat; there was no desire for it. My muscles were getting flabby—I tired easily. Many a morning I would get up after a sleepless night feeling that I could hardly pull through the day. I was also troubled with those annoying so-called skin troubles. Then, one day a friend urged me to give S.S.S. a trial. Before finishing the first bottle, I could see I was improving. That was only a few weeks ago. Today I feel more like myself than I have in years."

Loss of appetite is only a symptom

It is a known fact that when one's system gets "run-down," they haven't the endurance to ward off disease. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. Other symptoms prevalent the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Rich, red, blood builds and cautions

Your physician will tell you that lowered vitality is the result of an insufficient supply of red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that nourish and sustain the body.

When you get your red blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again; sleep soundly; solid flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong; and your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. purges poisons from body

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its merits in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

Made only from the finest vegetable blood purifiers, S.S.S. goes to work on the cause of the trouble, helping you regain health.

250 Hounds Take Part In Trials

FIRST GRAND FINAL RUN IS DEAD HEAT; CLARK WINS SECOND

Mt. Vernon Dogs Win in Three-Heat Event of Meet

One of the most successful events in the history of the sport in Marion County, more than 2,000 fans saw 250 dogs perform in the annual Marion-Bucyrus Coon Field Trials held as a Memorial Day event north of Marion.

In the first grand final event dogs owned by Benny Kempton of Chesterville and D. T. Branbury of Mt. Vernon raced to a dead heat. First place was split between the two owners. Walter Clark, Chatfield, sent his dog through to first place in the second grand final. More than $200 in prize money was distributed, promoters stated.

Heat winners are as follows:

First—R. H. Workman, Mt. Vernon; Second—D. T. Branbury, Mt. Vernon; Third—E. Spohn, Pendleville; Fourth—Virgil Spearman, Mt. Vernon. Fifth—Walter Clark, Chatfield. Sixth—A. C. Owen, Shelby. Seventh—R. L. Rossman, Lykens. Eighth—A. L. Knienemen, Lyken. Ninth—D. F. Banbury, Mt. Vernon. Tenth—Benny Kempton, Chesterville.

In the speed event, George Slatzer's "Lindbergh" won first. The line race was copped by Charles Cover of Crawford County.

John Mosher, Jr., seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mosher, 138 Clover-av, who was stricken with infantile paralysis during the epidemic here last August, was yesterday removed to the Children's Hospital, Columbus, for observation. The boy, a pupil at Forest Lawn School last year, suffered loss of the use of both legs.

THAW GOES ABROAD

New York, May 31—Harry K. Thaw sailed abroad the Cunard liner Aquitania for a three-weeks' visit in London and Paris, accompanied by E. Morgan Pendleton, on his first visit abroad in 23 years. He said he hoped to attend dedication exercises on the Fourth of July at a monument commemorating the part the Lafayette escadrille played in the war, remarking that two of his nephews served in the war, and one of them, Blair Thaw, was killed in action.

O. S. U. Graduation Will Be Held at Ohio Stadium

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, O., May 31—Ohio Stadium, of Ohio State University, is far from being the exclusive home of football, for which it was primarily constructed.

For, since its erection, in the light of the growing need, for additional building and field space, meets of many varieties, both athletic and scholastic, have taken place in the huge gray walls of Ohio's memorial to the gridiron sport.

Following the custom established last year, when adequate indoor accommodations could not be obtained, commencement exercises which will involve nearly 1200 graduating seniors, will again be held in the same surroundings where the Scarlet and Gray grid warriors upheld the sport laurels, last fall.

In addition to football, the stadium is the center of all sporting activity on the Ohio State campus, both for varsity and intra-mural sports, with the possible exception of basketball.

Best in Middle West

Ohio State's cinder track, circling the outer edge of the football field, is rated as one of the best in the middle west. Practices for the varsity and all class teams of both track and field sports are held on the stadium track and the football field. In preparation for inclement weather, a practice track has been erected under the west tower seating section.

Varsity fencers have found it convenient to make the stadium their headquarters as have the basketball, tennis and soccer squads. Ohio State's 100-piece band works out weekly in the huge horseshoe in preparation for the coming football season. Numerous inter group sings are also held in the stadium oval yearly.

The gymnasium, once the center of all sorts, with the exception of the daily gym classes, is now practically deserted.

Graduate as Honor Cadet Officers at Ohio State University

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, May 31—Richwood, Carey, Upper Sandusky and Mt. Gilead youths were among the honor cadet officers graduating from the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Ohio State University, last week.

The youths, Howser C. Hunt, of Richwood, Arthur F. Steiert, of Upper Sandusky; Gale W. Bachelder, of Mt. Gilead, and William R. King, of Carey, were given commissions of second lieutenants in the United States Reserve Corps at the graduation ceremonies, held in connection with the annual spring competitive drill.

All of the youths are seniors at the university and completed four years of enrollment in the Reserve Officers Training Corps. Hunt was a member of the infantry unit while Steiert, Bachelder and King were graduated from the artillery unit.

Compositions Written by Grade Pupils as Part of Closing Work

As a part of their work during the last few weeks of school, pupils of the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth grades of Marion Public Schools wrote compositions on one of six subjects. The compositions were to be written in 20 minutes' time.

The subjects were "A Pleasant Surprise," "A Camping Experience," "A Narrow Escape," "An Imaginary Adventure, "A Fishing Trip" and "My First Swim."

FEEDING BOOTLEGGERS IS BIG JAIL PROBLEM

Santa Fe, New Mex.—Feeding the bootleggers and gamblers who reside in the Colfax county jail has become a problem, according to members of the board of county commissioners. They have eaten up the $3,000 food allowance. An effort is being made to get money from other departments of the county budget.

STOWAWAYS IN BAD

Efforts of three Scotch boys to get to America as stowaways caused them to land back in Glasgow to face a fine of jail sentence. Peter McClean, 18, Henry Moore, 16, and Harold Hosack, 15, managed to get aboard a liner at Glasgow and hide themselves in the fore-peak. They were found, and made to work their way to New York and back, then were turned over to the police. The judge gave each the choice of a fine of $10 or 20 days imprisonment.

PRISONER TO FACE CHARGE OF MURDER

Henry Foos, Attacked by Intruder at Home, Succumbs from Injuries

...ook work, was found among his possessions. The letter wished him success in his work. A letter addressed to box 145 in care of the Star, in which he had answered an advertisement for a farm hand, was also found in his possession.

Beaten With Stone

The assault which resulted in the death of Henry Foos at the City Hospital yesterday morning is described by police as one of the most brutal in recent years. Using a large smooth stone which he carried with him into the house, Dean, according to his confession, beat his victim on the head until he fell unconscious to the floor.

Mrs. Foos, who had come to the aid of her husband, received a blow in the face from the fist of the assailant. A blood-covered stone, with blood spots on a shirt cuff and strands of dark hair clinging to the cuff button, are caute evidences held by police indicating the fury of the assault.

A story told by Dean following his arrest, that he had won the $857.71 found in his possession in a crap game on the West Side, grew less convincing as the day wore on and late Tuesday night, he wrote out and signed a full confession of the crime, Chief of Police Thompson says.

In his reported confession Dean said he was walking in the vicinity of the Foos home Tuesday morning seeking work as a farm hand and thinking perhaps there might be an opportunity to secure work, went to the rear door of the house. Unable to get a response to his rapping on the door, Dean said he forced open a screen and entered the house.

While ransacking the place he said he heard Mr. and Mrs. Foos returning and concealed himself in the cellar. While waiting in the cellar, he said, he heard Mr. Foos go to the telephone and calling a neighbor said some one had broken into the house. Evidently in response to a question as to whether his money had been taken, Mr. Foos said his money was safe as he had taken it with him. Dean says the couple then went upstairs, evidently seeking the intruder and as he heard them coming down, he went up to the first floor and met them in the dining room, according to the account of his reported confession.

Starts Attack

As the aged man caught sight of him, Dean said, he leaped upon him, scratching his face and beating him with his fists, in the meantime attempting to reach the telephone. As the two in struggling reached the telephone, Dean said he reached up and jerked the wires loose and taking a stone from his pocket proceeded to beat the old man on the head. As Mrs. Foos attempted to interfere, Dean is said to have confessed, he struck her in the face with his fist.

As the aged man fell to the floor, Dean said he seized a small leather bag containing the money which had been laid on a davenport, and extracting the money, seized a silk scarf which Mrs. Foos had been wearing about her neck, in which he intended to wrap up the money, and ran from the house.

Mrs. Foos, staggering to the road, called to a passerby, who in turn notified the police here. Chief Thompson and Sheriff Deal responded in the police car, and in the meantime nearly 100 farmers armed with guns and pitchforks had taken up the chase.

With the arrival of the police, a line was thrown around the fleeing man and as they gradually closed in, Dean was forced into the open in a field northeast of the fairgrounds. When within 20 feet of Dean, Patrolman Bert Yoakam ordered him to throw up his hands. He made no resistance and was placed under arrest by the patrolman, brought to this city in the police car and locked up at police headquarters.

The theory that Dean had an accomplice, is scouted by Chief of Police Thompson, who believes Dean did not know of the presence of the money until he overheard the conversation while concealed in the cellar.

Finds More Money

In addition to the $857.71 found in Dean's possession when taken to police headquarters, Patrolman Yoakam found $120 in $10 and $20 bills near the spot where he had placed the man under arrest when he returned to the farm later in the afternoon seeking several articles which had been taken from the home, but which had not been found when Dean was searched at police headquarters.

The body of Mr. Foos was taken to the Curtis Funeral Home on E. Center-st yesterday morning and Friday morning will be taken to his late home on the Harvey-rd. Saturday, the body will be taken to the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Bird, at Lykens Chapel, from where the funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock conducted by Rev. L. S. Green. Burial will be made in the Marion Cemetery.

Mrs. Foos, who is confined to her bed at her home, will also be taken to the Bird home in the Curtis invalid car Saturday morning.

Mr. Foos was born in Scott Township, Jan. 5, 1855 and spent his entire life in this county. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Foos. Surviving with his widow, Mrs. Martha Cleff Foos, is one daughter, Mrs. Charles Bird of Lykens Chapel and three grandchildren, Mable Gertrude Bird, Henrietta Bird and Zelma Bird. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. D. M. Hipsmore, N. Main-st and four brothers, Jack of Union County, Hiram of Harding Highway East, Ellery of the Waldo-rd and William of near Galion. He was a member of the Methodist Church at Lykens Chapel.

400 ATTEND ANNUAL BANQUET TO SENIORS

Colorful Picture Present at Social Affair in Star Auditorium

With an attendance of about 400 Harding High School seniors, juniors and faculty in formal attire, the annual Junior-Senior banquet given by juniors Tuesday night in Star Auditorium, presented a colorful picture.

The dinner and dance, arranged annually by juniors as a farewell for the seniors, is undoubtedly the most brilliant and spectacular affair of school activities. The hall was colorfully decorated for the occasion with streamers in pastel shades and with the high school colors of red and black.

After the dinner dancing was enjoyed from 9 to 12 o'clock, music being furnished by Murray's orchestra.

John Waddell, junior class president, who presided as toastmaster for the occasion, gave the address of welcome to which Miss Janie Shelton, senior class president, responded. Miss Jane Guthery, junior, gave a toast "to senior boys" and James Reed, junior, a toast "to senior girls." Miss Genevieve Stowe, senior responded to with a toast "to junior boys" and Walter Moore, senior, with a toast "to junior girls." A clever talk was given by Miss Louise Cunningham, representing the faculty, on "Some Junior-Senior Banquets."

Arrangements for the party were in charge of Mr. Waddell and the following committees; music, Mary Jenkins, Eula Bain, Dorothy Bush, Harry Dossey and Julian Walker; menu, Jane Guthery, Sue McCurdy, Katherine Zachman, William Heffelfinger and Richard McAninch; decorating, Margaret Reece, Mary Wires, James Bull, Emerson Russell and Howard Bailey; program, Frederick Merchant, Evelyn Bachelder, Jane Smith, Faye Zuspan and John Artopoeus; finance, James Reed, Jane Bradley, Ann Schoenlaub and Elizabeth Stakes; invitation, Alice Wilson, Lenore Bondley, Margaret Forrey and Jane Canterbury; and reception; Mary Jo Stafford, Edgar Hastings, Helen French and Mildred Duffey.

HONORS AWARDED TO SCHOOL PUPILS

Achievement Day Program to Held at Oakland Heights

Genevieve Doering received all honors at the third annual Achievement Day program held Tuesday at Oakland Heights School building. Interest in school work is maintained throughout the year, because of the various ribbons and badges which are presented pupils for special achievements in their work.

To those who had not been tardy during the year, 477 "on time" badges of white ribbon were given. "Not absent" badges on coral ribbon were given to 56 pupils, and 56 certificates for punctuality were presented by Superintendent Jesse H. Mason.

Diplomas are presented to those who have completed four years of reading, and seals are given those with five and six years of reading. Sixty-eight received diplomas. 11 the five-year seals and six the six-year seals. Reading Circle Certificates were presented to 440.

"Honor badges," blue ribbons, are awarded to those who make a grade of A in all studies taken during the year. Those to receive this honor were Mary Esther Selanders, sixth grade, and Mary Detwiler, Virginia Blair, fifth grade, Roberta Fisher, fourth grade.

The following from the third grade received badges: Helen McWilliams, Mildred Miles, Helen Knight, Clara Louise Levine, and Margaret Watt, and Edna Mae Briggs, Betty McCrary, Gladys Reidenbaugh, Glenna Himmerger, Garnet Higgins, Irene Nagey, Bonny Lou Gast, and Ida Pearl Brunson, from the second grade. Primary pupils who received the award include Sammy Davis, Mary Brumbell, Delores Jams, Mary Ruth Manis, Marion Schlagenhauf, Robert Murphey, Robert Wills, Robert Bergner, Wilson Cantrell, Marjorie Williamson, Elton Gher, Edith Brunon, Vera Smart and Elmer Rochester.

After the presentation of all honors had been made, the pupils formed a pie rade, headed by the Boy Scouts, and marched around the block.

Exercises were held in the school yard and songs were sung by [illegible] grade before the [illegible] were presented.

It's a pretty safe guess that when "professors," whose regular jobs consist in teaching in schools, colleges and universities, work for public utility corporations as side lines, they give the better part of their endeavors to the public utilities.

No matter who may have been primarily responsible for the defeat of farm relief, it's a cinch that Vice President Dawes was the obstacle in the way of earlier country-wide relief.

In his report as prosecutor of the Teapot Dome committee, Senator Walsh attacks the treasury department. That's the weakness of these senatorial investigations. Those engaged in making them seem unable to forget politics.

Those across-the-country runners certainly worked hard to attain their goal, but it begins to look as though they will have to work a lot harder to get their money.

J. W. Blake, of Houston, who is said to be recognized as a Klan leader, is reported to have said that Al. Smith will be nominated down there, but that 2,000,000 votes controlled by the Klan will defeat him. Sometimes we wonder if Al. hasn't subsidized some of these political prophets.

The British house of lords has passed the "Votes for Flappers" bill, which gives all British women of twenty-one or over the right to vote. The right of the measure can not be questioned, but there may be question of any great governmental reforms as a result of it. Our experience over here with legislation to the same end has not clarified politics.

Our Policy Emulated.

It will be recalled that our government was made the target of considerable European criticism when it refused passport visas to a British agitator who was a delegate to an international gathering over here. It seems that Great Britain takes much the same position toward communists as that taken by the United States, and about the only conclusion we are able to reach is that some of the British papers which criticised the course of this country were not sincere at the time or have since suffered a change of heart.

The British incident to which we here refer is the refusal of the British government to visa the passports of two soviet Russian delegates to the annual conference of the Cooperative union in London. To make the rebuff especially pointed, the same day that Britain refused to visa the passports of the two delegates, J. R. Clynes, a prominent Labor member of parliament, delivered a broadside at communists and communism in an address made by him before the congress of the National Union of General and Municipal Workers, of which he is president.

"They first divide our forces," Mr. Clynes told the congress, "then indulge in shallow appeals for a united front. They make a mockery of elected institutions, as well as impute the worst motives and every form of dishonest cowardice to leaders of organized labor. The communist aims for a dictatorship, expressed through military power applied in the name of the proletariat, but always controlled by other classes. Dictatorship is tyranny, even when it is a working class dictatorship."

Mr. Clynes painted a far from flattering picture of labor conditions in Great Britain, holding that millions of Britishers worked hard and yet were forced to face impoverishment. Hundreds of thousands, he said, dwelt in habitations which even conservative public authorities condemned. He said that thousands of hopelessly poor awaited relief through charity. And yet, despite all these conditions, he held that the labor situation in Great Britain was inestimably better and the outlook incomparably brighter than that in Russia, whose labor was the slave of the bolshevik dictatorship.

Can there much longer be doubt that the civilized world has been sickened by the awful example of communism offered by Russia?

All of Us in Part Responsible.

Henry Foos, an aged and highly-respected farmer, died in the city hospital Wednesday morning, the victim of an assault made upon him at his home north of the city the day before by a robber.

The immediate cause of death was a wound, or wounds, inflicted upon the head of Foos with a stone in the hands of the robber, but if the alleged fact that his assailant was a paroled convict is established, his death may be attributed to the workings of a system which prematurely turns loose upon the law-abiding citizens of Ohio many criminals, who take advantage of the freedom thus gained to commit other and often more serious crimes than those for which they were imprisoned.

The system, the vicious workings of which have repeatedly been demonstrated, a striking illustration being the case of the fiend who this week murdered a little seven-year-old girl up in Toledo and threw her body upon the porch of a relative, was unloaded upon the state through the influence of that element of the citizenship which seemingly has more regard for the perpetrators of crimes than for the victims; the element which has abandoned as untenable in this age of "reforms" the old theory that prisons were institutions for the punishment of crime, and become champions of the theory that prisons are merely places where criminals are to be reformed and from which they are to be released upon prison records of good behavior. It is a significant fact, that it is the experienced criminal more often than the neophyte in crime who takes advantage of the situation to gain freedom by exemplary conduct as a prisoner.

It is now very generally conceded that, in the operation of our criminal laws, the accused has a high percentage of advantage over the state. We can not recall a conviction in decades upon a technicality, but the acquittals as the result of technicalities are almost endless, and when convictions are accomplished and imprisonments follow, there is the parole system to free prisoners before the completion of their sentences and, as so often is the case, encourage them to the committing of other crimes.

We do not know that this aged farmer came to his death at the hands of a paroled convict. We do not pretend to know the facts in the case, or the identity of his assailant. There are matters which the law and the courts must establish. But if it is demonstrated that he was killed by a paroled convict, the people of Ohio can not wholly escape part responsibility for the reason that they have remained passive under the operation of laws which work to their disadvantage instead of demanding and enforcing a revision of our entire system of criminal jurisprudence, which has become notoriously obsolete and ineffective in deterring crime.

"WHERE ARE THE POLITICAL CORN DOCTORS?"

Catch Germ—Kill Disease

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Lots of folks laugh at germs and there are a few doctors left who scorn the germ theory of disease. But if any thoughtful person will study the statistics of disease, he must admit that something has happened to make certain ailments much less common.

We used to hear a lot about erysipelas. It was found in every neighborhood. That is not the case at present. This is one of the diseases we rarely see any more.

We have learned that cuts and scratches must be protected from infection with the germ of pus production. All wounds must be properly cared for or trouble follows. The germs of erysipelas, for instance, are among the troubles which can reach the body through a cut or any sort of a skin abrasion.

Erysipelas starts like several other infectious diseases with a chill and vomiting. Sometimes there are convulsions first and then high fever. The victim complains of a feeling of illness, pains in the back and legs, and headache. The bowels are disturbed and the tongue is coated.

Shortly after the chill the skin shows the peculiar reaction of erysipelas. First there may be several red spots which run together into a single swollen, red and shining area.

It is characteristic of this disease to have the boundaries of the area distinctly defined. The borders are as sharply drawn as the edges of a book.

The swollen part is hard and hot. The skin is tender to the touch and there are itching, burning and tingling sensations. In a few days blisters form on the swollen skin. In about a week the swelling grows less, but before the improvement begins there may be serious delirium, as well as great pain and real illness.

Many applications have been suggested for the control of the local symptoms. The most common remedy is ichthyol. This may be employed as a watery solution, or as an ointment. If it is used in water it is usually made up in a twenty to fifty per cent. solution. In ointment form it may be used in strengths of twenty to forty per cent. in vaseline. This is applied to the affected parts.

The itching and discomfort are sometimes relieved by hypo-sulphite of soda, one drachm to the ounce of water. This may be mopped on the painful parts.

Erysipelas is too serious a trouble to be treated by the home folks. The family doctor is needed to supervise things and to give such medical treatment as the case requires. The general health will need to be built up and the resistance to the germs of disease increased.

Above all else guard against the infection of any wound or abrasion of the skin. In this way you will avoid erysipelas or some other serious disturbance.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

A. M. Q—I am seventeen years of age, five feet eight inches tall; what should I weigh? What should a girl of twenty-three, five feet eight inches tall weigh?

2—What will make the hair grow faster? I have had my hair cut and it grows very slowly.

3—What should a girl of nineteen, five feet seven and one-half inches tall weigh?

A—You should weigh respectively: 138 and 142 pounds.

2—If the general health is good the hair should grow about an inch every month. A good, stimulating hair tonic may be helpful. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

3—She should weigh about 137 pounds.

Editorial Opinion.

TAKING THEIR SLANG SERIOUSLY.

Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the British prime minister, said at a recent meeting of the Women's Conservative association in Huddersfield, England, that "flapper" was a silly word used by "medievnl people with stationary minds," and that the term was as appropriate to a girl of today as "chapper" would be for the modern young man.

Whereupon an English newspaper took up the discussion by presenting possible derivations of the word "flapper" which, contrary to our idea that this word has been coined since the war, was a product of the late nineteenth century.

"Some have it that the victims first received their label in a friendly, if slightly derisive spirit, that likened their gait and demeanor to that of the young wild ducks and partridges to whom the word properly applies," says the newspaper. "And some, more probably, identify it with the pigtails that in Victorian days swung rhythmically upon the napes of the necks of perambulating young womanhood. But the pigtails have gone; and whatever the idiosyncrasies in deportment of the young woman of today, her gait has indisputably more of the sinuosity of the serpent about it than the waddle of the duckling. Yet such is our conservatism in slang that she seems doomed to bear to all eternity an epithet which is robbed of all recognizable association, and not all the 'cuties,' the 'honeys,' and the 'babies' that the onward marching American slang offers by way of substitute can save her."

Mrs. Baldwin may be right in saying that "flapper" is a silly word. But the English newspaper is not correct in suggesting that American slang has offered "cutey," "honey" or "baby" as a substitute for "flapper." A flapper may be any one of those three, but it does not follow that a "cutey" or a "honey" or a "baby," in the slang sense, is necessarily a flapper. In fact, when they get to be cuties and babies, the girls have probably left their flapperhood behind them.

But if the word "flapper" annoys Mrs. Baldwin and others, they are in for a long period of disturbance. For "flapper" has long since passed out of "slanguage" into the English language. It is too rare and perfect a word to be discarded. It is one of those so suitable words that instantly presents a mental picture of the person it is intended to describe—the unsainly, immature girl who adopts a veneer of quasi-sophistication.—Detroit Free Press.

THE SOLID MAN.

Maxims often go wrong, but not so in the case of William Muldoon, who has just turned into his eighty-third year. If he had not fallen the other day, when jostled by a crowd, he would have taken eighty-three in his stride as he has taken everything else. Temporarily, he is perforce spending some time abed. But that does not alter the fact that he is a living proof of maxims. For since he was a lad he has taken care of his body and his mind, that both might grow and remain strong and clean. No finer specimen of physical well-being or public service in his particular line can be found in these parts.

Until he was at least eighty he could out-exercise almost anybody one-third his age. Muldoon's, at White Plains, became the place not to go unless one really meant to adopt the ascetic form of living. So long as "The Solid Man" runs his health farm no favors will be shown anybody on any account, and he has had under his roof at one time a railroad president and a future president of the United States, puffing and moiling like the bank clerks they were puffing and moiling with. Mr. Muldoon looks very serious, and professionally he relaxes seldom, but close observers used to see a glint of humor in his fierce gray eyes when he was "tossing the medicine ball' to some young model for a Phidias, just out of college football and up to the farm to keep fit. In a short while the aged man would have the youth so winded that he could not return the ball. "So you call yourself a college athlete, hey?" Muldoon would say, and stride away.

In youth a soldier, a wrestler, an actor, of late years the Spartan archon of physical training and imperious member of the state athletic commission, Mr. Muldoon has come to his great age with the respect and affection of the community and the absolute adoration of the "students" whose lives he has made so beneficially but painfully monastic.—New York Times.

Color Play.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Two pieces of colored glass, one blue, the other yellow, are placed over one another and sunlight is transmitted through them. By experience the resulting color is green. But the blue glass aborbs all the colors of frequency other than that of blue, and the yellow glass absorbs all colors of frequency other than that of yellow; how, then, does the resulting color come out green?—F. J. N., Oakland."

The explanation stares you in the face; it must be that neither the blue nor the yellow glass cuts off all the other colors of the spectrum. The case is analogous to that of the mixture of colored pigments. When the painter wants to make green foliage he mixes blue and yellow pigments, and the light reflected from the mixture appears green to the eye, though, theoretically, the combination of yellow and blue should produce a close approach to white. And it does produce white when the two colors, each spectrally pure, are thrown together upon a screen. But, when they are combined by reflection of white light from a mixture of blue and yellow pigments, this is what happens: "The yellow particles absorb the red and blue rays, but reflect the yellow along with a good deal of the neighboring green and orange. The blue particles, on the other hand, absorb the red, orange and yellow, but reflect the blue and a good deal of the green and violet. As much of the light is affected by several particles, most of the rays are absorbed except green, which is reflected by both pigments."

Similar effects result from passing white light through colored solutions, or colored glasses, one yellow, the other blue. If beams of white light are passed separately through the solution, one blue, the other yellow, and then brought together, the result will be a white combination; but if a single beam is passed through one solution after the other the resultant color will be green. In this last case the action of the colored solutions has been the same as that of the colored pigments mixed by the painter; a certain amount of green has passed through both, and being the only color that has done so, it appears to be a reult of the mixture of the colors of both solutions, though in reality it is not a true color mixture at all, but simply the color that remains after each solution has exercised its absorbent action.

The yellow is cut off before it reaches the yellow glass, but the bordering green gets through the blue glass; the blue is cut off when it reaches the yellow glass, but the bordering green get through the yellow glass also. Thus the screen receives a green light. But you will find by varying the tint, the relative thickness, etc., of the glasses, that the tone and brightness of the escaping green is variable, and it is never a pure color.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, May 31—New York is often called the "City of Dreadful Debt" because of the inclination of most cliff dwellers to live far beyond their means. A bankruptcy petition, showing $100,000 debts and assets of a hat and change of underwear is frequent.

A contributory cause is easy credit. Once one is established at a hotel of standing he is automatically eligible for a charge account in almost every store. The man who couldn't command five dollars' worth of credit in his home town gets unlimited credit here.

As an experiment, I once stepped into a Fifth Avenue jewelry shop to purchase a cigaret case I had previously priced and extravagantly decided to own. I ordered it sent to my hotel and said "Charge it!" I had no charge account, yet the clerk suggested I take it along with me.

Questioned, he confessed he had no idea who I was. "We take such chances now and then," he said. "Had I been wrong, the firm would not have lost a cent. It would have been up to me to settle." Working on commission, he took this chance on the prospect I would become his steady customer.

On another occasion I ran up a sizable check in a restaurant and suddenly discovered I hadn't my purse. I was told without a quibble to sign my name and address on the back of the check. These experiences are not unusual. Almost every New Yorker finds the same easy credit.

I have known men who have lost important jobs suddenly and were able to live for two years in their accustomed manner on credit alone. Debt accumulators of this sort seem to suffer very little. It is the small wage-earner who endures tortures of debt. He usually falls in with the loan sharks.

Despite New York's incessant war on loan sharks, they continue their high-handed brigandage. They are conscienceless rascals who take advantage of their victims' ignorance of the law. Taxi drivers who borrow money on their machines are particular targets.

One of the new night haunts is Chill Villa, in the "Roaring Forties." Few chill parlors endure here, but this one is in its third year. It opens at dusk and closes at dawn, and is conducted, oddly enough, by a Vermont lady and her daughter, who is rather soothing on the eye. At midnight the place fills with stage folk and a soupcon of those indefinable people known as "celebrities." The menu contains an ominous line for nocturnal roysterers. It reads: "Cover Charge When Necessary."

The proprietress, a buxom lady, seemed capable of holding her own with the Broadway wits the night I was there. One of those foolish question askers came in, beamed brightly, and inquired: "How's the food?"

"Terrible," was the acid reply. "Everything we have has been here since Christmas."

A Park Avenue dinner party turned delightfully into one of those old-fashioned gatherings the other evening. The dignified guests found themselves playing charades, clap-in and clap-out and some guessing games of the nineties. Perhaps the most expensive manicure on record was received in a certain salon. The lady who received it awakened the next morning to find a swollen infected finger. Her husband rushed her immediately to one of the most expensive physicians in town. He made a written statement the infection was caused by clipping the cuticle too short. The husband took this to the proprietor of the establishment and demanded $15,000 or the alternative of a suit. Rather than face what he believed might be damaging publicity, he paid. And the couple are now touring Europe.—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

It is now ten years since the close of the World war. America and Europe are at last getting their hats on straight and have come to the place where they can at last look about and measure the rewards and penalties of that great conflict. They are at last beginning to see things in reasonable perspective. Is it not a sound conclusion to say that the war was an insane outbreak, that its evil results were vastly greater than its good results, and that it did nothing worth while for the world?

Dr. Glover, at the head of the department of mathematics of the University of Illinois, says the outstanding unsolved problem of the human race is the problem of increasing the span of human life. The average lifetime of those born now will be about fifty-five years. But that is not really as hopeful as it sounds. Heart disease and those other diseases which are brought on by unrest and the ceaseless activity of modern mental life are not being eliminated. The attack on middle age is increasing. Men are paying the penalty in greater numbers than ever for their inattention to rest and relaxation.

Prevention of the reproduction of the unfit is not a mere hope or theory. Perhaps it is not generally known that the state of California has been practicing sterilization in its state institutions since 1909. In that time about 5,000 operations have been performed. Four-fifths of these were in hospitals for the insane, and one-fifth in the state home for feeble-minded.

It is too bad the human mind works so slowly that few other states have been sufficiently convinced of the need of this practical procedure.

Many young men and women who think they can write and who would like to write, put off real work because they dislike the manual toil that writing demands. Even the most modern and smooth-running typewriter becomes a wearisome machine. Pushing a pencil or a pen is even more tiresome. Few can dictate as well as they can write, even if they can afford the luxury of a secretary. What is needed, in the face of such trifling discouragements, is more downright energy and less laziness.

Remember that Charles Dickens once wrote a whole book with a single quill pen. But Dickens did not suffer from the commonest complaint of the young person—mental indolence.

PROGRAM FOR STATE MEETING ANNOUNCED

Ohio Fire Chiefs' Association To Open Annual Session in Marion, Tuesday.

floor of the Hoch Motor Sales Co., on S. Prospect st, has been secured as the convention hall and will also be used to house the exhibits.

A visit to the Harding Memorial will be made by the visiting chiefs and their families on Tuesday morning.

The convention will be called to order at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon by Chief T. J. McFarland, president of the state association. A welcome will be extended to the visitors by Mayor Earl M. Hazen, whose address will be responded to by Chief James E. Granger, of the Cleveland fire department.

The remainder of the Tuesday afternoon program will be given over to talks by Grant E. Mouser, Jr., assistant attorney general, who will talk on "Firemens' Pensions and Compensation." W.T. Filmer, fire prevention director of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., Youngstown, who will take as the subject of his talk, "Are Fire Hazards Always Recognized?" H. L. Bond, field secretary of the National Fire Prevention Association, Boston, who will talk on "Field Engineering of National Fire Prevention Association," and W. S. Winzard, Ohio Inspection Bureau, who will talk on "Fire Control."

Tuesday Night Program

The Tuesday night program will be given over to the Ohio Association of Electrical Inspectors, who are meeting in conjunction with the fire chiefs. The meeting will be in charge of F. O. Everts, president, and the program will be featured with talks by W. M. Runyan, grounding expert with the Crouse-Hinds Co., of Rochester, N. Y., who will talk on "The Proper Method of Grounding." Robert Shepard, electrical engineer whose subect will be, "Construction of Panel Boards and Proper Determination of Fuse Capacities" and M. F. Smalley, meter superintendent of the Ohio Power Co., who will talk on "The Value of Adequate Electrical Inspection Service to the Public." An invitation to attend the Tuesday night meeting has been extended to all local electricians.

Three sectional meetings will feature the Wednesday morning session. Chiefs of the paid departments will meet in the convention hall with Chief D. E. Moser, of Warren, as chairman and H. L. Bond, field secretary of the National Fire Protection Association attending in an advisory capacity. Chiefs of volunteer departments will hold a meeting in the ball room at the Hotel Harding with Chief W. F. Wise, of Medina, as chairman and chiefs of the industrial plant fire departments will meet in the grill room at the Harding with Chief E. E. Green of the Timken Roller Bearing Co., Canton, as chairman.

The chiefs and their wives will meet at the convention hall at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when automobiles will be provided to take them to Crystal Lake Park for the afternoon program.

Closing Session

Thursday morning session will open at 9:30 o'clock in the convention hall with an address on "Arson Investigations," by Edward L. Donovan, of the Board of Fire Underwriters of Chicago. Addresses will also be made by J. F. Warren, manager of the Associated Factory Mutual Fire Insurance Co. of Chicago and by C. S. Magruder, of the State Fire Marshal's office, Columbus. The convention will close with a report by Chief Philip J. Harty, secretary-treasurer of the association, reports of the various committees and with election of officers.

Officers of the state association are Chief McFarland, of this city, president; Chief Robert Leedom, Portsmouth, vice president; Chief Edward J. Hunsinger, Massillon, second vice president, and Chief Philip J. Harty, Youngstown, secretary-treasurer.

The reception committee for the convention will be W. B. Strayer, director of safety, Chief of Police J. W. Thompson, C. B. Kling, G. Farr Larie, Fred B. Scherff, G. W. Whysall and Charles Klunk.

The reception committee which will greet the wives of the visiting chiefs will be composed of Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, chairman; Mrs. George Kelly, Mrs. O. A. Nifritt, Mrs. E. H. Fetter, Mrs. A. C. Dennis, Mrs. J. B. Yanel, Mrs. Fred Reiff, Mrs. O. C. Stafford and Mrs. T. J. McFarland. A special program for the women visitors has been prepared.

ORDINANCE NO. 2857

ADOPTING RULES AND REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE USE AND OPERATION OF, AND TRAFFIC THROUGH, THE ELECTRIC TRAFFIC SIGNALS IN THE CITY OF MARION, OHIO.

Be it ordained by the Council of the City of Marion and State of Ohio:

Section 1. That the following rules and regulations governing the use and operation of, and the traffic through, the electric traffic signals, in the City of Marion, Ohio, be, and the same are hereby adopted and made provisions of this Ordinance:

Rule 1. With central signal lights, the face of the signal light which advancing traffic meets in the light that controls; with the side signal lights, the signal light which is on the right of the advancing traffic, and across the intersection, is the light that controls.

Rule 2. Traffic will advance or continue to advance when the signal shows green; come to a stop when the signal shows red; and will not advance when the signal shows yellow; the yellow is a warning to prepare to advance or stop, depending upon whether the signal is changing from red to green or from green to red. However, if inside the intersection when the signal changes, continue to advance and clear the intersection.

Rule 3. When the signal is red, vehicular traffic will stop with the front of the first vehicle in line, at the point of intersection with the extension of the inside line of the nearest cross sidewalk. Pedestrian traffic will stop at the curb.

Rule 4. When the signal shows yellow, if changing from red to green, prepare to move and advance when and while it shows green; if changing from green to red, stop.

Rule 5. When the signal shows green, right turns are permitted, although the advance is against the red light in the new direction; left turns are also permitted, although the advance is against the red light in the new direction, but the vehicle making such left turn must cross over just beyond the center of the intersection, and work through the traffic at its own risk. Vehicles making the right turn, above mentioned, must protect pedestrian traffic.

Rule 6. No "U" turns will be permitted. A "U" turn is defined to be a complete reversal of direction of advance.

The above Rules shall govern vehicular and pedestrian traffic, where respectively applicable.

Section 2. Whoever violates any of the Rules set forth in Section 1 above shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding $50.00 for each offense, and the costs of prosecution, and shall stand committed until such fine and costs are paid.

Section 3. Any ordinances or parts of ordinances in any way conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same are hereby repealed.

TAXI DRIVER HELD AS CHILD'S SLAYER

Confesses to Fiendish Crime, Police Say; Unable To Give Motive

fighting. Mrs. Hoppe is a cousin of the murdered girl.

The confession ended an extensive man hunt in which the entire police department and many citizens participated. Discovery that the girl's assailant had a missing tooth, that he had returned home late Tuesday morning and that he and his wife had been roomers at the Bielagowski home, combined to lead to the arrest of Hoppe.

Hoppe, police say, has a prison record and is now on parole from the Ohio State penitentiary. He had been sentenced for auto stealing, police declare.

According to the statement, police reported that Hoppe went to the wedding Monday night and left early Tuesday morning after he had been drinking heavily. He went to the garage of Stanley Bielagowski, uncle of the slain girl, and took his touring car.

He drove the car around, police said, until he ran out of gas near the Willys-Overland plant. He then, according to police, picked out the sedan used in the murder from a parking space nearby.

Police declare that Hoppe said that he next went to the Bielagowski home in search of more liquor. He opened the door by means of a hole in the screen and after failing to find liquor in the cellar, police say he wandered to the front of the house and finally to the rear bedroom.

There, Hoppe admitted according to police, he saw Dorothy sleeping. He picked her up, police declare and carried her out of the house. When the child began to make a noise, Hoppe is said to have admitted to police, he struck her in the face until she became quiet.

Removed in Car

He told the police that he placed the unconscious girl in the back seat of the sedan and drove away. When he stopped the car again, Hoppe said according to police, the girl began to cry again so he bit her again.

Then police declare Hoppe then admitted he abused and mutilated the girl. After this police say Hoppe said he drove to the Shibinski and placed the body on the front porch. He then told police that he drove to Weber and Maple sts and abandoned the car, where it was found Tuesday morning, the interior splattered with blood.

Mrs. Hoppe told police that she read in the paper the next morning of her relative's murder. She said that she remarked to her husband that there were some policemen in the neighborhood.

Can't Explain Motive

When asked why he killed the girl, Hoppe is said to have answered that he did not even know why he went to the house. He told police that he had no enmity with the father of Dorothy which would move him to killing.

The funeral services for Dorothy, who was a first grade pupil at the Parkland school, will be held at St. Hedwig's Catholic Church tomorrow morning.

The little girl is survived by her parents, two brothers and two sisters. Her mother is confined in a state institution.

CONTINUE HUNT

Search Made for Abductor and Slayer of Youngstown Child

Youngstown, May 31—The hunt for the alleged abductor of ten-year-old Beatrice Rosenbaum, who was found dead last Sunday after having been missing from her home here nearly two weeks, continued today, after the last suspect held in connection with the case had been released.

Police this morning reported no new developments.

Mrs. Max B. Rosenbaum, mother of Beatrice, was reported by members of the family to be near a nervous breakdown.

Twenty-six American and four European cars were displayed at the recent automobile show at Helsingfors, Finland.

ORDINANCE NO. 2856

GRANTING UNTO THE MAAG BROTHERS TRANSIT COMPANY, A CORPORATION OF MARION, OHIO, ITS SUCCESSORS AND ASSIGNS, THE AUTHORITY, RIGHT, PRIVILEGE AND FRANCHISE TO ESTABLISH AND OPERATE MOTOR BUS TRANSPORTATION SERVICE FOR THE TRANSPORTATION OF PERSONS OVER, ALONG AND UPON THE STREETS, ALLEYS AND OTHER PUBLIC TRAVEL AREAS OF THE CITY OF MARION, OHIO, AND CONTRACTING WITH SAID THE MAAG BROTHERS TRANSIT COMPANY, ITS SUCCESSORS AND ASSIGNS FOR SUCH MOTOR BUS TRANSPORTATION SERVICE FOR AND ON BEHALF OF SAID CITY OF MARION, OHIO, AND ESTABLISHING AND FIXING ROUTES, SCHEDULES AND RATES THEREFOR.

Be it ordained by the Council of the City of Marion and State of Ohio:

Section 1. That there be and there is hereby granted unto THE MAAG BROTHERS TRANSIT COMPANY, a corporation of Marion, Ohio, and unto its successors and assigns, for and in consideration of, and subject to the conditions, agreements, and provisions hereinafter set forth, for a period of ten years from and after the acceptance by said Company, its successors or assigns of the terms and provisions of this Ordinance, the exclusive authority, right, privilege and franchise to establish, maintain and operate over, along and upon the various streets, avenues, alleys, and other public travel areas of the City of Marion, Ohio, as hereinafter defined and designated under the head of "Routes", a motor bus transportation service for the transportation of persons, all in accordance with the terms, conditions and provisions of this Ordinance.

Section 2. ROUTES. The regular and uniformly maintained bus transportation service, as above granted and operated and maintained regularly over and upon the following Routes:

ROUTE NO. 1.

Beginning at the intersection of East Center Street with the East corporation line of said City, thence westwardly on Center Street to Davids Street; thence southwardly on Davids Street to its intersection with Bellefontaine Avenue; thence returning over the same route of progression to the place of beginning.

NICE LIONS

No matter whether you believe those performanning lions that young Clyde Beatty battled with in the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus cage last week were coy kitten-hats or honest-to-goodness savages, it may be generally considered that Mr. Beatty's twice-daily visits to his playmates are not pink teas.

Some fall for all the glory of the arena, the plunging of the beasts against the barred cage, the quick-snapping of the jaws and the lightning-like sweep of the paws. And, others tell how their pet canines can be made to go into playful rages just like the lions if they are sufficiently provoked.

But, every once in a while the circus lions get tired of being docile and go on a rampage. At Syracuse, N. Y., last week seven veteran lions became jealous when a new performer came into the arena.

They all pounced on the visitor and the trainer dashed into the cage to save the latest arrival. In the rescue-melee the trainer was badly bitten and clawed.

He may live to tell the doubting Thomases about lions and their kittenish habits.

550—COUNT 'EM

EVERYBODY is waiting for the big political conventions.

The Republican session gets under way at Kansas City June 12 while the Democrats will begin their confab at Houston June 26, just two weeks later.

And while everybody waits, the scribes and scribesps are making plans to "cover" the conventions.

Approximately 550 seats in the telegraphic press sections have been allotted to active newspaper reporters, there being more this year than usual.

About 135 of this number will go from the U. S. Senate and House Press Galleries, while the larger part of the remaining 415 will consist of editors, publishers and reporters from papers which do not generally maintain special correspondents at the Capital.

International News Service, which furnishes The Star with its daily telegraphic report, will have 15 men sending convention copy to us. To care for all of this report the wire will open at 6 o'clock each morning instead of at the customary 7 o'clock.

DOUG'S A BOY

DOUG FAIRBANKS awakens in each of us the boyhood ambition to do anything and everything that is fantastic and mischievous.

How often have we all climbed on the old shanty or on a wooden dry goods box and imagined ourselves going through all the gyrations that the lithe Fairbanks does on the panoramic screen?

His latest picture, "The Gaucho," now showing at the Oakland, gives him free rein to disport himself in any athletic manner he sees fit. While "The Gaucho" is not better than his other pictures it still lives up to the Fairbanks standard.

The Fairbanks picture discloses a new star, Lupe Velez. She's a dead-ringer for Dolores Del Rio and sometimes she is as pretty as a picture and again she's the ugly duckling. But her general roughneck manner goes along hand in hand with Doug's brazenness in "The Gaucho."

ANNUAL PARTY

Harding High Press Club Gives Program at School Building

The annual party of members of the Harding High School Press Club was held last night in the gymnasium of the High School building. Guests of the students and members of the faculty were invited.

The program was opened with several numbers sung by Benjamin Gilmore, William Guthery and Edward Sloan. Miss Roberta Roberts presented an original poem, which mentioned members of the classes, and Miss Lenore Bondley read the club will.

Robert Elliott, president of the club and editor-in-chief of the Quiver Junior, introduced the program numbers and gave a short talk expressing thanks for a volume of this year's Quiver Junior, presented to him by the classes with a presentation speech by James Reed.

Students in the journalism classes, under the instruction of Miss Lucile Foreman, are members of the club. Several girls of the classes planned the program and refreshments. Following the entertainment ice cream and fancy cakes were served, and the evening spent socially.

EAST HITS U. S. FILMS

Agitation against American films is growing in the Far East. Australia has had a commission investigating the motion-picture situation, and may try to ban the importation of films. New Zealand already has a bill similar to England's new quota measure. India and the Netherlands East Indies plan to tighten censorship.

Sixty colleries have joined in the plan to control marketing of coal in Scotland.

As the result of a fall off a carpet on an amusement device called "Over the Falls," at the Peterboro, England, fair, Mrs. Irene Dixon died recently.

Do Unto Your Hands as You Would Have Them Do Unto You

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Edna Wallace Hopper

How many times it is said that a woman's hands betray her age. If this is true, start right now the pleasurable game of betraying your hands. The real truth behind the saying is that your hands will be kind to you if you show them a little consideration. It is simple.

I know that my hands have responded marvelously to it. Every time I wash them in my theater dressing room or at the hotel, I promptly counteract the effect of the soap and water by rubbing on briskly my Youth Hand Lotion.

This is a wonderful treat to the skin. Even the first application will show you. Your skin will absorb the lotion as quickly as a plant consumes moisture after the rainfall. It leaves your hands smooth and dry, and you can put on gloves immediately after using. Soft, white, lovely hands will be yours. You will realize how much your skin needs this soothing attention.

Always keep a bottle on your dressing table or bath room shelf. And most of all you need one where you work—whether your daily tasks are in the home or elsewhere.—Adv.

TERRIBLE STOMACH MISERY ENDED BY THIS NEW KOMJOLA

Celebrated Medicine Restored Her Health in Every Way, States This Lady

MRS. E. EVANS

"I've certainly found blessed relief in Komjola and I want to tell the public about this splendid medicine," said Mrs. E. Evans, 1670 Hampton Road, Akron, Ohio.

"I had been bothered a long time with stomach trouble. After meals I always bloated up with gas and the sickening pains finally made my stomach very sore. My liver was sluggish and caused me to have awful headaches and dizzy spells all during the day. I could have stood these miseries better if I had not been bothered with kidney trouble too. I had to rise several times during the night and I also had pains across the small of my back.

"I was in a terrible state of health when I got the first bottle of Komjola. It went right to the source of my health troubles and now all my miseries are gone. I can eat anything that I want and never have the least bit of gas bloating afterward. This medicine regulated my liver and relieved me of constipation and dizzy spells. Then my kidneys began to get stronger and now I don't have to get up at all during the night, and the pains in my back are gone. My health is better than it has been in several years and I owe it all to Komjola."

Komjola is different than any other medicine recently in this section. It contains twenty-two herbs extracted from mineral waters which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Komjola on the entire system before constipation relief in cases of suffering that had been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new measure of health through this compound. Already a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experiences with this new medical product until now Komjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Komjola is strongly recommended by the Marion 10 Stores & Home Grocery, and is also being sold by [illegible] druggists in all towns.

NOBILS

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Brittain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeves over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each purchase you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine article.

The Mystery at Styles

THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

What Has Happened So Far

John Cavendish meets an old friend, Hastings, on sick leave. He invites him to Styles Court to spend a month, telling him that his stepmother who owns the place has remarried and is now Mrs. Alfred Inglethorp. At the Court Hastings meets Evie Howard, companion to Mrs. Inglethorp, Cynthia Murdoch, a young protegee, and Mary Cavendish, John's wife. He finds the atmosphere highly charged and the Cavendishes resentful of the new husband's authority. John's brother, Lawrence, appears and Evie tells John she is leaving and denounces Inglethorp as an adventurer. Later she begs Hastings to look after Mrs. Inglethorp, telling him that she is surrounded by a lot of sharks who are all after her money. Dr. Bauerstein, an expert on poisons, comes to call on Mrs. Cavendish. John explains to Hastings that he, his wife and his brother are all dependent on his step-mothers' generosity. Hastings has a premonition of approaching evil. With Lawrence, he calls on Cynthia at the dispensary where she works. They discuss poisons. Later he runs across M. Poirot, an old friend and a celebrated detective. Mrs. Inglethorp has a row with her husband. Bauerstein makes a late call. Mrs. Inglethorp goes to bed carrying a cup of untasted coffee in her hand and Inglethorp goes out with the Doctor telling John that no one need sit up for him as he has a latch key.

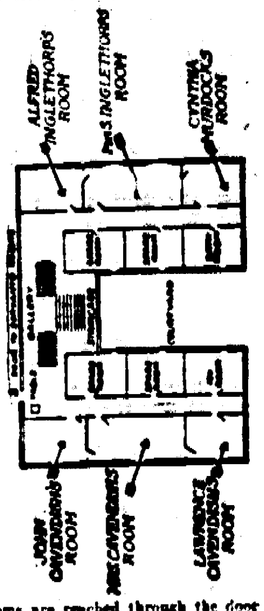
CHAPTER 5

TO make this part of my story clear, I append the following plans of the first floor of Styles. The servants' rooms are reached through the door B. They have no communication with the right wing, were the Inglethorp's rooms were situated.



It seemed to be in the middle of the night when I was awakened by Lawrence Cavendish. He had a candle in his hand, and the agitation of his face told me at once that something was serious wrong.

"What's the matter?" I asked, sitting up in bed, and trying to collect my scattered thoughts.

"We are afraid my mother is very ill. She seems to be having some kind of fit. Unfortunately she has locked herself in."

"I'll come at once."

I sprang out of bed; and, pulling on a dressing gown, followed Lawrence along the passage and the gallery to the right wing of the house.

John Cavendish joined us, and one or two of the servants were standing around in a state of awe-stricken excitement. Lawrence turned to his brother.

"What do you think we had better do?"

Never, I thought, had his indecision of character been more apparent.

John rattled the handle of Mrs. Inglethorp's door violently, but with no effect. It was obviously locked or bolted on the inside. The whole household was aroused by now. The most alarming sounds were audible from the interior of the room. Clearly something must be done.

"Try going through Mr. Inglethorp's room, sir," cried Dorcas. "Oh, the poor mistress!"

Suddenly I realized that Alfred Inglethorp was not with us—that he alone had given no sign of his presence. John opened the door of his room. It was pitch dark, but Lawrence was following with the candle, and by its feeble light we saw that the bed had not been slept in and that there was no sign of the room having been occupied.

We went straight to the connecting door. That, too, was locked or bolted on the inside. What was to be done?

"Oh, dear, sir," cried Dorcas, wringing her hands, "what ever shall we do?"

"We must try and break the door in I suppose. It'll be a tough job, though. Here, let one of the maids go down and wake Baily and tell him to go for Dr. Wilkins at once. Now then we'll have a try at the door. Half a moment, though, isn't there a door into Miss Cynthia's rooms?"

"Yes sir, but that's always bolted It's never been undone."

"Well, we might just see."

He ran rapidly down the corridor to Cynthia's room. Mary Cavendish was there, shaking the girl—who must have been an unusually sound sleeper—and trying to wake her.

In a moment or two he was back.

"No good. That's bolted too. We must break in the door. I think this one is a shade less solid than the one in the passage."

We strained and heaved together. The frame-work of the door was solid, and for a long time it resisted our efforts, but at last we felt it give beneath our weight, and finally, with a resounding crash, it was burst open.

We stumbled in together, Lawrence still holding his candle. Mrs. Inglethorp was lying on the bed, her whole form agitated by violent convulsions in one of which she must have overturned the table beside her. As we entered, however, her limbs relaxed, and she fell back upon the pillows.

John strode across the room, and lit the gas. Turning to Annie, one of the housemaids, he sent her downstairs to the dining room for Brandy. Then he went across to his mother whilst I unbolted the door that gave on the corridor.

I turned to Lawrence, to suggest that I had better leave them now that there was no further need of my services, but the words were frozen on my lips. Never have I seen such a ghastly look on any man's face. He was white as chalk, the candle he held in his shaking hand was sputtering onto the carpet, and his eyes petrified with terror, or some such kindred emotion, stared fixedly over my head at a point on the further wall.

It was as though he had seen something that turned him to stone. I instinctively followed the direction of his eyes, but I could see nothing unusual. The still flickering ashes in the grate, and the row of prim ornaments on the mantelpiece were surely harmless enough.

The violence of Mrs. Inglethorp's attack seemed to be passing. She was able to speak in short gasps.

"Better now—very sudden—stupid of me—to lock myself in."

A shadow fell on the bed and looking up, I saw Mary Cavendish standing near the door with her arm around Cynthia. She seemed to be supporting the girl, who looked utterly dazed and unlike herself. Her face was heavily flushed, and she yawned repeatedly.

"Poor Cynthia is quite frightened," said Mrs. Cavendish in a low clear voice. She herself, I noticed, was dressed in her white and smock. Then it must be later than I thought. I saw a faint streak of daylight was showing through the curtains of the windows, and that the clock on the mantelpiece pointed to close upon 5 o'clock.

A stranged cry from the bed startled me. A fresh access of pain seized the unfortunate old lady. The convulsions were of a violence terrible to behold. Everything was confusion We thronged around her, powerless to help or alleviate. A final convulsion lifted her from the bed until she appeared to rest upon her head and her heels, with her body arched in an extraordinary manner. In vain Mary and John tried to administer more brandy. The moments flew. Again the body arched itself in that peculiar fashion.

At that moment, Dr. Bauerstein pushed his way authoritatively into the room. For one instant he stopped dead, staring at the figure on the bed and, at the same instant, Mrs. Inglethorp cried out in a strangled voice, her eyes fixed on the doctor:

"Alfred—Alfred!" Then she fell back motionless on the pillows

With a stride, the doctor reached the bed, and seizing her arms worked them energetically, applying what I know to be artificial respiration. He issued a few short sharp orders to the servants. An imperative wave of his hand drove us all to the door.

We watched him, fascinated, though I think we all knew in our hearts that it was too late, and that nothing could be done now. I could see by the expression on his face that he himself had little hope.

Finally he abandoned his task, shaking his head gravely. At that moment, we heard footsteps outside and Dr. Wilkins, Mrs. Inglethorp's own doctor, a portly, fussy little man, came bustling in.

In a few words Dr. Bauerstein explained how he had happened to be passing the lodge gates as the car came out, and had run up to the house as fast as he could, whilst the car went on to fetch Dr. Wilkins. With a faint gesture of the hand, he indicated the figure on the bed.

"Ve—ry sad. Ve—ry sad," murmured Dr. Wilkins. "Poor dear lady. Always did far too much—far too much—against my advice. I warned her. Her heart was far from strong. 'Take it easy,' I said to her, 'Take—it—easy.' But no—her zeal for good works was too great. Nature rebelled. Na—ture—re—belled."

Dr. Bauerstein, I noticed, was watching the local doctor narrowly. He still kept his eyes fixed on him as he spoke.

"The convulsions were of a peculiar violence, Dr. Wilkins. I am sorry you were not here in time to witness them. They were quite tetanic in character."

"Ah!" said Dr. Wilkins wisely.

"I should like to speak to you in private," said Dr. Bauerstein. He turned to John. "You do not object?"

"Certainly not."

We all trooped out into the corridor, leaving the two doctors alone, and I heard the key turned in the lock behind us.

We went slowly down the stairs. I was violently excited. I have a certain talent for deduction, and Dr. Bauerstein's manner had started a flock of wild surmises in my mind. Mary Cavendish laid her hand upon my arm.

"What is it? Why did Dr. Bauerstein seem so—peculiar?"

I looked at her.

"Do you know what I think?"

"What?"

"Listen!" I looked around, the others were out of earshot. I lowered my voice to a whisper. "I believe she has been poisoned. I'm certain Dr. Bauerstein suspects it."

"What?" She shrank against the wall, the pupils of her eyes dilating wildly. Then, with a sudden cry that startled me, she cried out: "No, no—not that—not that!" And breaking from me, fled up the stairs. I followed her, afraid that she was going to faint. I found her leaning against the bannisters, deadly pale. She waved me away impatiently.

"No, no—leave me. I'd rather be alone. Let me just be quiet for a minute or two. Go down to the others."

I obeyed her reluctantly. John and Lawrence were in the dining-room. I joined them. We were all silent, but I suppose I voiced the thoughts of us all when I at last broke it by saying:

"Where is Mr. Inglethorp?"

John shook his head.

"He's not in the house."

Our eyes met. Where was Alfred Inglethorp? His absence was strange and inexplicable. I remembered Mrs. Inglethorp's dying words. What lay beneath them? What more could she have told us, if she had had time?

At last we heard the doctors descending the stairs. Dr. Wilkins was looking important and excited, and trying to conceal an inward exultation under a manner of generous calm. Dr. Bauerstein remained in the background, his grave bearded face unchanged. Dr. Wilkins was the spokesman for the two. He addressed himself to John:

"Mr. Cavendish, I should like your consent to a post-mortem."

"Is that necessary?" asked John gravely. A spasm of pain crossed his face.

"Absolutely," said Dr. Bauerstein.

"You mean by that—?"

"That neither Dr. Wilkins nor myself could give a death certificate under the circumstances."

John bent his head.

"In that case, I have no alternative but to agree."

"Thank you," said Dr. Wilkins briskly. "We propose that it should take place tomorrow night—or rather tonight. And be glanced at the daylight. "Under the circumstances, I am afraid an inquest can hardly be avoided—these formalities are necessary, but I beg that you won't distress yourselves."

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Junior Brings Friends to the Farm

AT my half-hysterical words of gratitude, Harry Underwood clapped me on the shoulder as if I had been Dicky, and grinned down at me with his old teasing whimsical expression.

"Two 'pishes' and a brace of 'tushes'!" he said. "You're not going to let me off that easily. I'm still holding the scales away down on the debit side. By the way, where's all the family?"

Skillfully he had calmed and cheered me by his casual air and whimsical chatter. And if anything had been needed to show me how greatly this man had changed it was in his reaction to the emotionally expressed gratitude which I had proffered him.

"Mary has gone for a drive with Eleanor Lincoln, George Jackson and Noel Veritzen," I told him, "while Katherine and Marion have gone to the village on a shopping trip with Mother Graham."

"I see you still give our young neighbors their one hundred per cent American names," he said with a grin. He was keeping his voice down to a low murmur so that it could not possibly disturb Junior even if he were regaining consciousness. Intuitively I knew that he was trying to keep my mind occupied with idle chatter, and though I resented even that slight interruption to the vigil I was keeping, I gratefully played up to his kindness.

"I try to do that even when thinking of them," I said, "for no one outside our circle here save Mr. Veritizen knows that Miss Lincoln is Princess Olina of Transvania, and that young Mr. Jackson is Prince Georges of Trevs. They both are especially anxious that Mary and Noel shall not guess their identity as yet."

Mr. Underwood chuckled softly.

"I wonder how long it'll take them to come out of the other," he said. "They sure are doing the Zenda and Graustark stunt all over the map, but I give them about three months longer, probably less, until they see this as a real world, not a three-volume romantic novel."

The sound of a motor horn blowing steadily came into the room, faintly at first, but getting louder every second. We all knew the sound of that horn and why it was blowing. There is a hedge of lilacs at the side of the farmyard which obstructs a view of the road. Whenever Mother Graham is in the car she insists that the driver begin to blow several yards from the entrance and keep on blowing until the car is safely in the farmyard. The next second Dicky rushed up the stairs, meeting Lillian at the door of the room. I knew the thought that was in their minds as well as in mine and Harry Underwood's, but characteristically, it was Lillian who gave it voice.

"Madge! You and Dicky must go down to Mother Graham. I'll stay with Junior. I won't take my eyes from him until you get back. Better get Katrina to one side and tip her off first so she can have a hypodermic ready if your mothers' heart goes back on her.

With a grateful glance at her, I joined Dicky and we hurried downstairs.

"I'll go and help Mother out," Dicky said, "and keep her talking, while you tell Katherine. Then, when she's ready and Mother's inside, we can risk telling her."

The car with Katherine driving came into the driveway and stopped by the side veranda. Dicky went to his mother's side of the car and across her head, I saw him signal Katherine to hurry into the house. The little nurse needs but the fraction of a hint to go into instant action, and the next instant she was in the hall, where I met her.

"Junior fell from a tree, is unconscious. The doctor doesn't think its dangerous, but will you get your hypodermic ready? We're afraid to tell—"

I had no chance to finish the sentence. She was flying up the stairs, and in record-breaking time had everything ready for an emergency treatment of Dicky's mother should the news prove too much of a shock for her.

"I'll stay in here," she said, setting her preparations behind a pile of books, "while you go out to her. Bring her inside, of course, before you tell her."

Dreading the task before me, I walked out where Dicky was showing his mother a rare rose which had opened while she was in the village. It was one which she had tended herself, and she was so absorbed that she did not see Jerry Tiver running toward her and Dicky, his face contorted with grief and fright. Dicky's back was toward our good-hearted but slow-thinking young neighbor, and though I raced toward the boy I was not in time to stop his cry:

"Oh! Mr. Graham, is Junior dead? Katie says he fell from the tree and they can't wake him."—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dicky's Mother Stricken When She Hears of Accident

DICKY spun around with a savage "Shut up, you fool!" as he heard Jerry Tiver's excited, almost sobbing words. But Jerry has a slow and exceedingly one-track mind. There was no stopping him until he had finished his question. I doubt indeed if he heard Dicky's reproof.

With a prayer that my mother-in-law had not understood him, I sped across the lawn to her side. But with Dicky's arm around her, she was battling for breath, her eyes holding the tortured inquiry which she was not able to voice.

"Mother, dear listen!" I said loudly as I reached her. "We do not think Junior is badly hurt. He fell out of a tree, but the doctor says—"

"Help me, Madge!" Dicky's agitated voice interrupted me as his mother slumped in his arms, and we saw that she had swooned. I helped steady her, while Dicky shot a quick exasperated order to Jerry to help him lift her.

"Take her feet, Madge," my husband commanded, and we carried the helpless figure into the house and laid her upon the couch which Katherine had made ready. The nurse tested her heart beats and then administered the hypodermic. I knew that Katherine was unusually deft and quick of movement, and that it was only my own nervousness which made her seem slow and awkward. But I could have screamed in sheer hysteria as there was I between my desire to rush back to my boy, and my feeling that I ought to stay beside my husband until we found out how serious was his mother's heart attack.

But the hypodermic Katherine had administered was a powerful one and the attack not as hard as we had feared. It was only a minute or two before she opened her eyes to consciousness—and terror.

"My baby?" she whispered—to Madge, grandmother Junior will be a baby when he is graduating from college.

"He is all right, Mother," Dicky said emphatically. "When you're a little stronger, you shall go upstairs and see him."

Katherine caught the cue, and improvised her lines swiftly and skilfully.

"Oh, no, not for quite a while!" she said. "This has been a bad attack. She must rest before she climbs any stairs."

The tortured old eyes went from one face to another.

"Did—the—doctor—come?" She was looking directly at me, and I took up the task of fitting the truth to her need.

"Yes, right away," I told her cheerily. "He said there were no broken bones, and he didn't think there were any sprains. Junior's asleep now, and the doctor thinks he will be all right when he awakens. I'll let you know when he does wake up."

Her eyes were narrowed, piercing. "But Jerry Tiver said—" she began and I was fervently thankful when Dicky struck in, his voice keyed to just the right note of impatient scorn.

"Jerry Tiver!" he said. "Did ever that lad get anything right in his whole life? And Katie's been off her nut ever since she saw the kid fall from the tree."

As if the word had been a better tonic than the hypodermic, Dicky's mother raised herself to a sitting posture, and looked sternly at her son. We knew better than to interfere with her sitting up, but Katherine unobtrusively piled pillows behind her and held them in such a position that she was supported against them.

"What tree was it?" she asked.

I forbore looking at my husband. I knew the tree she meant. It had been the subject of a long standing controversy in which Dicky on one side was ranged against his mother, Katherine and me. Junior had been taught by his father to climb trees and I raised no objection to his climbing the sensible tree which had low branches and from which a fall to the soft grass was not particularly dangerous. But this tree in the orchard had higher branches than any the small boy had been permitted to climb, and Mother Graham, Katherine and I had argued that he was not old enough yet to attempt it. Dicky, however, with boyish pride in his son's prowess and, admittedly not upon speaking terms with anyone who refused to climb it, and I knew that he must have given his consent in spite of our wishes, for one limb had, through punishment of his stern of childish limbs, never displays a specific ornament.

'The Understanding Heart'

A Story of the California Forests

BY PETER B. KYNE

(Copyright, 1926, Peter B. Kyne by arrangement with King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHAPTER 62

"WELL, here's the deed to Uncle Charley's hill section," Monica announced as she examined the contents of the envelope handed to her by Bob. "Duly signed by Uncle Charley before a notary public at Siskiyou Center—and the deed runs direct to me! I suppose father included to do that to save the cost of probating his estate. He was an old man and realized he might not live a great while longer."

"That's a great help" the man commented casually. "We ought to let Uncle Charley's widow know about that right off. The news will save her a heap of trouble and worry. What that old girls needs mighty bad right now is a job."

"She has it. She went back to it a week ago. My attorney, Mr. Anthony Garland, sprung on her an old document she had forgotten she had signed when Uncle Charley swindled her before she could swindle him. Her suit has been thrown out of court. Judge Kenly told her she didn't come into court with clean hands."

"Anything else of importance in that envelope?" Bob queried, after relating to her the details of its belated discovery. "The night Uncle Charley died he said your father made an affidavit—you know, about Kelcey picking up Bardwell's loaded pistol and the empty shells. Maybe he filed it in that envelope with the deed."

Monica looked leisurely through the envelope and shook her head. "Just a lot of miscellaneous papers of no particular value, Bob," she informed him. She tossed the envelope on the bench under the sugar-pine and came to the side of his horse, took his right hand in hers, kissed it and held her soft cheek against it for an appreciable moment. "You know what I feel, don't you Bob, old friend?" she murmured.

He nodded grimly. Yes, he knew how she felt and the knowledge stabbed him. She felt sorry for him—sorry because she knew he loved her—sorry because she could not return his love. To her he must always be the dear old friend of happier days.

"Don't feel sorry for me," he murmured huskily. "I want you should be mighty happy. I—I m—bes'ted for Montague tonight. Do you want me to take that deed down to Tony and tell him to file it for record? The sight of it will surely make that good man feel mighty pert."

"You do like him, don't you, Bob?" the girl cried eagerly.

He reached over and permitted his scarred, hard hand to rest on her bright head; he ruffled her hair with unexpected tenderness, his calloused fingers playing wistfully over her shell-like ear.

"Yes, honey girl, he's got as much man in him as any of 'em males ever have. I don't reckon any of us are ever quite worth a woman like you. Most women, now, they just rattle and prattle and perk and make a man think a lot of things that aren't so, and all the time they're saying to themselves: 'What is there in this for me?' But you're different. When you've got something to say you say it, and a fellow knows you mean it, but mostly you talk best and say more when you don't say anything. I'm right fond of you, Monica. Whenever you need a friend to go to hell for you, send for Bob Mason."

He bent over and kissed her white forehead just where the red-brown hair was parted . . . Presently, with the deed in his pocket he rode silently down through the charred timber to Tantrum Meadows. Monica, gazing after him, thought of his wrecked life and wondered what success would attend him in his efforts to gather the broken pieces and make of them once more an orderly and pleasing pattern.

He had his boy, he had his father love, he had his bitter memories; Monica wondered if he would ever marry again, ever realize the quiet, peaceful, surely ambitious domesticity men of his kind require. Well, bitterness dies and love goes on to the end, gaining strength, if worthy . . . Monica had a feeling that somewhere, sometime this childhood friend would come at last to a peaceful haven.

She took from the envelope several sheets of paper covered with her late father's scrawling chirography and read them, read even the notarial attestation attached. What a strange, secretive old pair her father and Uncle Charley had been! Why had her father not told her of what he had seen that day?

Monica wondered if he had told Bob Mason instead and if that strange chivalrous man had warned her father to say nothing about it, had charged him not to dishonor the woman Mason had sworn to love, cherish, and protect until death them did part, had implored him not to put the brand of shame upon the mother of Mason's child.

Was it possible that shrewd old Uncle Charley had induced her father to make this affidavit, hoping that prison would soften the calamant of Bob Mason's ridiculous resolution and induce him to take advantage of this one way out? Well, nobody would ever know now. . . . Uncle Charley and her father—they were a queer pair.

Kelcey had divorced Bob, deserted her child and, doubtless, gone tripping blithely down the short, swift way to the oblivion a mysterious Providence had arranged for her at birth.

Monica struck a match and burned the affidavit that would have been so precious once but was no longer of the slightest use save to convict Kelcey Mason of dual treachery and a lifeless heart.

Poor, pretty, empty little Kelcey!

To be concluded.

Our favorite recipe

Sliced Strawberry Jam

Every woman knows that the larger fruit is boiled the more its bright color darkens and its delicate, fresh flavor drifts away in steam.

That is why the new short-boil method of making jams and jellies with Certo delights so many women.

The following easy recipe makes the finest strawberry jam you have ever tasted. Two quarts of berries will make ten eight-ounce glasses of jam.

Crush thoroughly, a few at a time, one-half cup of the berries. Measure exactly 4 cups of the crushed fruit into a large preserving kettle. Add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest tap water available. Place over hottest fire and bring quickly to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 1 minute. Remove from fire and add 1 bottle (½ cup) Certo, and then alternately for about 7 minutes, stir and skim. To prevent fruit from floating, pour quickly and evenly into glasses. Cover at once with hot paraffin. (This recipe is for making as much jam as can be boiled at one time. Do not attempt to make more than a double recipe.)

Certo is the natural substance in fruit which causes it to jell. It is now extracted from fruit, refined and bottled so that you may use it to make all your fruits jell perfectly without the old-fashioned, tedious and uncertain long "boiling down."

Get Certo from your grocer. A book of simple, tested recipes for many kinds of delicious jams, jellies and marmalades comes under the label of each bottle.

Recommended by cooking expert

Miss Alice Bradley, Principal, John Farmer's School of Cookery and Cooking Editor, Woman's Home Companion, says—

"I earnestly advise all housekeepers to get a bottle of Certo and try out some of the recipes. One will soon convince you that the best way to make jams and jellies is 'The Certo Way.'"
